Resnick Hits State on Water Issue

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick of Ellenville (D-28th District), on Thursday accused the State Water Commission of "dereliction of duty" in creating false hopes for drought-stricken New York City residents and pitting the metropolis against Dutchess County residents in what amounts to a court trial.

The congressman's statement came at a press conference preceding a public hearing in Poughkeepsie conducted by the state commission into New York City's intention of tapping the Hudson River at Chelsea, just south of Poughkeepsie's Hyde Park water plant.

Read 1961 Report

Reading from a 1961 report prepared by the commission in cooperation with the U. S. Geological Survey, Congressman Resnick said, "Water from the unconsolidated departments underlying and immediately adjacent to the Hudson River would probably be of satisfactory quality in the northern and central parts of the county. In the southern part of the county, on the other hand, the water either may be salty now or may become salty with pumping, owing to the infiltration of brackish water which occasionally moves upstream nearly to Poughkeepsie."

"Water obtained from the river near the Veterans Hospital at Castle Point, Chelsea, contained more than 250 parts per million chloride for 47 days in 1949, one of the driest years on record."

Congressman Resnick noted that the drought this year was generally believed to be worse than in 1949, and pointed out that the commission's report ended on this phrase: "Thus, heavy withdrawal from wells adjacent to the river in the southern part of the county might..."

357 Vols Attend Convention Dinner

Three-hundred and seventy-five persons attended the annual banquet of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association Thursday night, and marked the opening event of the 1965 convention which continues tonight with the business sessions.

The annual convention parade steps off at 4 p. m. sharp on Saturday at Old Route 9W and New Paltz Road, Highland, with all units forming at 3 p. m.

Eldest Tonight

The roast beef dinner was served at Pantony's Restaurant on Route 299, Town of Lloyd. Tonight's session, starting at 8 p. m., will be held at the Highland Firehouse. Officers will be elected for 1965-66, resolutions will be acted upon and it is expected the delegates will select Kingston for next year's convention.

Dutchess County Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan was guest speaker at the dinner. He highly praised volunteer firemen's units for their faithful service to their communities, and told of his association with volunteer firefighters for more than 30 years. The speaker said he had worked side by side with volunteers for years, and he commended them for their willingness to cooperate with police agencies in time of need.

During his talk he touched on the subject of crime and noted an increase in crime in most cities.

Domenick Constantino, president of the association opened last night's dinner session and extended a welcome to the delegates and guests.

Murphy Is Honored

The president introduced Joseph L. Murphy, former fire chief in Kingston, and presented him with a plaque in honor of his 30 years of service to the county association. Murphy was one of the original 24 members of the firemen's association, which now has an active membership of 815.

Supervisor Harry Weezenaar, Town of Lloyd, was introduced by Constantino, and he welcomed the delegates with complimentary remarks. William Maynard, grand marshal and former fire chief of Highland Fire Department, was introduced.

Prayer was offered at the opening of the dinner by Alvin Beatty, association chaplain. Constantino was general chairman.

President Signs Voting Rights, Will File Suits

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson went to the Capitol to sign the monumental voting rights bill today and said that with this action "we strike away the last major shackles of those fierce and ancient bonds" of the Negroes.

And Johnson announced that at 1 p. m. Saturday at his direction, Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach will file suit challenging the constitutionality of the Mississippi poll tax.

"This," he said, "will begin the legal process which, I confidently believe, will very soon prohibit any state from requiring the payment of money in order to vote."

Additional poll tax suits will be filed in Texas, Alabama and Virginia Tuesday, the President said.

By Saturday, he said, the Justice Department will have certified officially places where discrimination exists.

And, he said, he has asked the department to designate by Monday morning many counties where past experience clearly shows federal action will be necessary to assure Negroes of registration as voters.

Johnson predicted that by Tuesday registration of eligible men and women will be under way in 10 to 15 counties by trained federal examiners.

Conservation Office Plans Almost Done

Plans for the new District Eight headquarters of the New York Conservation Department in Ulster County are now being completed with word on the contemplated date of construction due within two weeks, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson said today.

And all this "despite a Democratic effort to cancel out funds for the construction of the new building," the Woodstock lawmaker added.

"During the past session of the Legislature," said Wilson, "the Conservation Department had requested $341,000 to construct the new District Eight headquarters in New Paltz, and $25,000 for gypsy moth spraying in Ulster County, but both items had been knocked out of the 1965 State Budget by the Democratic-controlled fiscal committees."

Skepticism Is View on Ghana Note

WASHINGTON (AP)—A special message concerning Viet Nam was being sent to President Johnson today by Ghana's President Kwame Nkrumah, but there was no sign the move would quickly lead to peace talks.

Due in N.Y. Today

Reports from Accra said that promptly after the return Thursday of a Ghanaian emissary who had met with North Vietnamese chief Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi, Nkrumah dispatched his foreign minister, Alex Quaison-Sackey, with a special message from Nkrumah to Johnson. Quaison-Sackey, president of the U.N. General Assembly, was due in New York today.

U.S. sources said they expected Johnson would receive him in Washington.

While the specifics of Nkrumah's message were not available here in advance, informed sources doubted it would lead to a breakthrough in the impasse over negotiations to end the Vietnamese war.

Says Hanoi Vague

Johnson has offered to enter into unconditional discussions with any government. Hanoi has put forward a four-point proposal including withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam and a settlement there in accord with the Communist political program. U.S. officials said Hanoi has been vague on whether it will insist on its four points as a precondition for talks.

The Southeast Asia conflict came under National Security Council review again late Thursday. Maxwell D. Taylor, retiring after a year as ambassador to Saigon, reported to the top strategy group in closed session at the White House.

Get Taylor Briefing

Bill D. Moyers, press secretary, said the President and the diplomatic, military and intelligence chiefs at the meeting received a briefing from Taylor similar to that which he had given Johnson the previous day.

The National Republican Congressional Committee meanwhile said "we believe the president's latest revelation of his aims... points to a coming surrender."

An editorial in the committee's newsletter said that after "agonizing reappraisal... the President seems ready to discuss, among other things, Hanoi's proposals of last April as a basis for settlement... among them are complete U.S. military withdrawal from South Viet Nam and an arrangement of South Viet Nam's internal affairs as proposed by National Liberation Front."

To Hear All on Storage Of Water, Mones States

Action on proposed increase of city water storage will be taken only after consideration of all concerned, Melvin Mones, water board president said in a press release today.

It follows published opinion this week of views of Mayor John J. Schwenk and Mones on the water board's bid for a $550,000 bond issue to increase Cooper Lake water storage by 280 million gallons.

Mayor Schwenk feels that the city should consider the possibility of saving money by using water from the upper Sawkill watershed and Echo Lake and Mones noted approval by consulting engineers of the Cooper Lake plan as presented.

The Cooper Lake reservoir capacity would be increased by enlarging the dam and taking whatever other action would be necessary to build up storage.

Both Cite Points

Statements by both Mones and the mayor cited points in a 1961 engineers' report which favor either plan, but the one submitted in the request for approval of the bond issue calls for increasing Cooper Lake storage.

Mones' statement released today: "The Board of Water Commissioners of the City of Kingston, all of whom are direct appointees of Mayor Schwenk do not wish to engage in any fruitless public debate at this time or in the future on the question of policy. We have no desire to interfere with or influence him. Our responsibility places us only in the area of giving advice to his office and seeing to it that the city water department is run in an economical and efficient manner."

To Hear All Officials

"The serious question regarding the acquisition of monies to explore and develop better sources and storage of water supply for our city will be resolved as soon as possible. This will be accomplished only after all official parties responsible for doing so are completely satisfied with the results and findings of thorough investigation."

Guerrilla Casualties Staggering

Loss of Division Possible in Month

TRA SON, Viet Nam (AP)—U. S. Marines and Vietnamese troops launched a second offensive today aimed at destroying elusive Viet Cong units near Quang Ngai that have smashed government outposts and wiped out two battalions.

As the combined force went into action, a U. S. military spokesman claimed that the Viet Cong in July suffered their heaviest casualties for a one-month period of the war and "may well have lost a division of troops."

The Communists lost 3,050 killed and taken prisoner, the spokesman added, compared with 2,750 casualties in June. Vietnamese government casualties for the month were put at 3,850, including 1,335 killed in action.

No U. S. Figures Given

No American casualty figures were given.

The Americans found their worst enemy of the day was the blistering sun. Temperatures soared past 130 degrees and about 40 Marines were heat casualties.

The Communists again eluded the allied regiment-size force, which was poured into the area 60 miles south of Da Nang.

There was no known Viet Cong casualties due to Marine action. Vietnamese results were not immediately available.

One peasant girl was killed and a man was wounded during the air strikes to secure a landing zone for the helicopters that brought in the Marines.

There Hours Before

Viet Cong had been in the area only a few hours before. Although the operation was launched in response to intelligence information fixating a Communist battalion near this village, a major reason for the plan apparently was to again seek to smooth out joint U.S.-Vietnamese operations.

For the first time in three such operations, the American and Vietnamese command centers were located in the same tent. But witnesses said there appeared to be a good deal of confusion and that neither side was accepting any authority of the other.

While military casualties were under discussion here, a crippled U. S. B57 Canberra jet bomber crashed on a main street of Nha Trang, a seaside city 200 miles northeast of Saigon, and claimed a heavy toll amid fire and explosions.

Fear More Dead

A U. S. spokesman said 12 Vietnamese civilians were killed and 4 Americans and 63 Vietnamese were injured and additional dead were believed to be in the debris.

Blames Democrats

The Ulster County Assemblyman went on to say, "The Conservation Department had been planning the move to Ulster County for the past two years, and a 10-acre site in the Town of New Paltz had already been acquired for the building, but the Democrats saw fit to disregard the needs of Ulster County and sliced the Conservation Department's requests for the county from the budget."

Both Assemblyman Wilson and Senator E. Ogden Bush took the matter to the Governor's office, and through the combined efforts of the Governor and the local legislators, the funds for the new building and the gypsy moth spray program were restored in the supplemental budget, which was passed on the final day of the 1965 session.

Important to County

Assemblyman Wilson said: "The new Conservation Department building will not only bring the immediate benefit of new construction work to our county but it also will mean that in the years to come Ulster County will become an even more important focal point for conservation activities in this section of New York State."

State Tax Confusing Even After Answers

By CHARLES M. MCCARTHY
Freeman Staff Writer

Someone once said, "The only things you can be sure of are death and taxes."

And after an informative meeting Thursday night in the Governor Clinton Hotel, designed to bring local merchants, business and taxpayers up to date on the new state two percent sales tax, some people aren't even sure about death.

As for the tax, the approximately 200 persons who turned out for the session sponsored by the Kingston Uptown Businessmen's Association, appeared certain of but one thing: bookkeeping of the highest order is now a standard operating procedure for the New York State businessman.

Mixed Reaction

Edward F. Hritz, director of the District State Sales Tax Office and former Poughkeepsie city sales tax auditor, spent about an hour and a half answering questions from the floor on the new sales tax and how it affects local consumers as well as merchants and businessmen.

There was mixed reaction today to the sales tax itself as well as to the local presentation, which admittedly left a number of merchants, tavern owners and other businessmen as much—if not more, confused than before.

Much Misunderstanding

George Svirsky, past president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association, said that, "I think that the sales tax program is confusing, and that last night's meeting makes it more confusing."

Svirsky is operator of the United Pharmacy.

Robert Teetsel, former operator of The Barn, longtime favorite local restaurant which was supplanted by the Washington Avenue arterial, said, "I think he (Hritz) did a good job, but I'm afraid there was a lot of misunderstanding among the audience as to the interpretation of the tax."

Teetsel is a former president of the Ulster County Hotel & Restaurant Dealers Association Inc.

John Misasi of the Promise Land restaurant said it was "The best set of double talk rules I've ever seen in my life."

He asked, "Where do you tax and where do you don't?" Misasi said "We're going to have to cope with it until it is repealed or rescinded."

The latter did not appear likely.

N. Y. 40th State

In fact, Hritz, who read a prepared statement outlining the taxable items under the new sales tax schedule, said that as of August 1, New York State became the 40th state in the Union to adopt a state sales tax.

His audience, comprised primarily of professional business people, represented a cross section of merchants, retailers, contractors and other individual business people from throughout Ulster County. They greeted Hritz's introduction by Stanley London with gentle applause and listened attentively as Hritz outlined the tax schedule, emphasizing such points as "tangibles," "composite sales" and "capital improvements" and how they affected the tax schedule.

Answers Questions

After his brief outline, Hritz calmly answered question after question fired from the floor from anxious interrogators who wanted pertinent facts as to how the new sales tax affected their particular business.

The ensuing exchange sounded like classroom gymnastics on modern business methods: "There is no assessment on gross;" "cars—the tax does not" (Continued on Page 8, Col. 3)

Saugerties Plans Review of Two Town Ordinances

Ordinances regulating junkyards and house trailers will get a second look to determine if they are applicable in cases brought before Saugerties Town Board Thursday night.

Test cases ruling against the ordinances could very well nullify similar measures in several Ulster County townships.

Attorney G. Thomas Rea Jr. told the board that clients have asked him how the trailer ordinance applies to them specifically, and he (Rea) was there to get the board's interpretation of the measure. The board agreed that the matter should be studied at a special meeting with Rea. Rea said there were 89 trailers in the town.

Supervisor Peter M. Williams reported that he had received two applications for the establishment of junkyards in accordance with the stipulations in the town's junkyard ordinance. The applicants are Richard Praetorius Jr. of Blue Mountain, and Richard Barnard of Manorville.

Since litigation appears imminent in the Baker junkyard case, the board decided to hold the applications in abeyance pending final disposition.

Donald E. Baker of Glasco Turnpike was found guilty last week for violation of the town junkyard ordinance and imposition of sentence and penalty was held over until Tuesday, Aug. 10. At that time Baker's attorney indicated he would take action to have the measure declared unconstitutional. Baker has been operating an auto junkyard at the former WGHQ radio station property on Glasco Turnpike at Mt. Marion.

Supports Letter

Joseph Fabiano, president of Glasco Fire Company spoke in support of a fire company letter to the board protesting the blocking of an alley on the east side of Ebel's Market. The letter said poles were placed in front of the alley and that motorists are parking cars in front of the pole thus blocking the fire zone of Glasco Fire Station.

The board turned the matter

HEAR STATE TAX OUTLINE—An attentive audience listens to outline of new state two percent sales tax which went into effect August 1 and how it will affect consumer and vendor. Speaker at informative session, which was attended by some 200 Ulster businessmen, merchants and consumers, was Edward F. Hritz, director of District State Sales Tax Office and former Poughkeepsie city sales tax auditor. His appearance was sponsored by Kingston Uptown Businessmen's Association in the Crystal Room of Governor Clinton Hotel which was filled to near capacity. Consensus of businessmen, merchants and others interviewed subsequent to meeting was that new sales tax is "confusing," "a nuisance" and "contradictory." (Freeman photo by Wagenfohr)

Two Ministers Are Renamed to City Commission

Mayor John J. Schwenk today announced reappointment of the Rev. Chester O. Newton, pastor of the Franklin Street AME Zion Church, and the Rev. Edwin C. Coon, pastor of the Fair Street Reformed Church, as members of the Commission on Human Relations.

Their new terms are effective as of this date, and they are to serve three years.

The commission, which is non-profit, has an office in the City Hall. It is headed by the Rev. Edward L. Farrelly, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church.

It was created on July 23, 1963 as a mayor's advisory commission and it was officially authorized and established under state law on Aug. 5, 1964. The two reappointed have served on it since its inception.

"By giving of their time and effort to this commission," the mayor said, "the Rev. Coon and the Rev. Newton are filling an important role in our community. They have helped keep the city free from the violence that has been and is being experienced by other communities. This commission, through the dedication of its members and the cooperation of all Kingstonians, is providing a way for our citizens to air any grievance they may have pertaining to human relations, and is instrumental in solving any difficulties that may arise."

2 Concerts Will Conclude Series Saturday, Sunday

The Philharmonia Trio will finish the monumental examination of the literature for trio with a Saturday 8:30 concert at Maverick covering standard works by Mozart and Brahms, and a contemporary piece by the Czech-Slovak composer Martinu.

To conclude, on Sunday at 3 p. m., the trio will present the Beethoven Piano Trio Op. 1, No. 1, and will play for the first time two trios commissioned by the Cohn Music Foundation of Woodstock: the Cowell Piano Trio and the Semmler Trio Op. 40.

Started at the death of Dr. Cohn by his wife, the Cohn Music Foundation encourages the writing of chamber music, preferably by composers connected in some way with the musical life of Woodstock. It has already presented an original quartet composed by Eli Krul, a young Polish-American composer, which was played by the Beaux Arts Quartet.

The Cowell trio, finished in 1965, is composed of nine short movements, each different in tempo and character.

In 1962 the Maverick Concerts celebrated Mr. Cowell's 50th anniversary as composer in a concert of his music. At 68, Mr. Cowell continues to compose and spends summers at his home in Shady with his wife, Sidney, herself an authority on American folklore.

Alexander Semmler's Trio, Op. 40, was written in 1964. It consists of four strongly contrasting movements. Mr. Semmler, who maintains a home in Woodstock, is well known to Maverick concert goers as musical director of the concerts.

The Philharmonia Trio, composed of Charles Libove, violin; Nina Lugovoy, piano; and Alan Shulman, cello, are well qualified to communicate to the audience the understanding of this appealing form of music. "Car-negie Hall was illustrated by a genuine chamber music approach," said the New York Times.

List Recreation Program in Town

A diversified sports program is presented during the summer at Woodstock Recreation Field under the direction of John Stefano.

Activities are available to any child from five to 12 who is a resident of Woodstock, and children may continue to register at any time during the summer. At this time there are 250 youngsters taking advantage of this supervised activity.

The program includes arts, crafts and swimming lessons in the mornings. Open swimming from 1 to 4:30 p. m., Monday through Friday and from 10 to noon and 1 to 4 p. m., on Saturdays.

A lifeguard is in attendance at the pool at all times. At the playground there is softball, kickball, horseshoes, croquet, field games and archery, as well as a weekly checker tournament. A snack bar is operated by Judy Longyear and children may bring lunches and stay all day.

Children younger than five are welcome in the afternoons if the parent stays to supervise them. The recreation staff includes Laura Mulligan and Eda Crist who teach arts and crafts; Pat Sullivan, director of swimming; John Stefano, director and Steve Hanks, assistant director.

Gluck's Orpheus Will Open Tonight

The Turnau Opera Players of Woodstock will present Gluck's Orpheus tonight, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday at Byrdcliff with Shirley Love of the Metropolitan Opera Company singing the title role.

The sets and costumes by Jeanne Doyle and the lighting designed by Patricia Collins create a mood of dramatic intensity to frame Gluck's music. Further excitement will be added to the performance by the Norman Walker Dance Company which has recently ended an engagement at Jacob's Pillow.

Mr. Walker himself, who recently returned from an engagement at the Cologne Opera, will direct the entire production. Warren Wilson and his associate, Herbert Kaplan, are the musical directors.

Florida Driver Held

Thomas White, 63, Palm Beach, Fla., was arrested late Thursday by state police on a charge of driving a motor vehicle while intoxicated. He was ordered held for arraignment later before Justice of the Peace John O. Beaver, Town of Esopus.

Woodstock Vols Start Fund Drive Saturday, Aug. 14

Wearing their fire hats and badges, volunteers of the Woodstock Fire District will begin their annual fund raising drive on Saturday, Aug. 14.

According to Capt. Peter Koehn, committee chairman, all arrangements have been completed, the district having been divided into five parts and teams assigned to each.

The donations received will be used to buy new equipment and maintain other company-owned equipment. In doing this the company will be in a position to provide better fire protection to the town as well as keeping fire district taxes down.

A new base station has been installed at the firehouse which can also be used for two-way communication with trucks of other companies.

Capt. Koehn's report was given at Woodstock Fire Company No. 1 meeting held Monday night at the firehall. Chief George Haythorne reported that July was quiet with only six alarms, three brush fires, one car, one building, and an emergency call.

The resignation of John Woodard, who has moved to Zena, was accepted with regret and Ben Merch was elected to the unexpired term.

Members were reminded that the company will participate in the Ulster County Firemen's Association parade in Highland Saturday.

Jaycees Session

Supervisor Abram Molyneux of Woodstock was the guest speaker at the July membership meeting of Woodstock Jaycees held at Danies.

Supervisor Molyneux reviewed the highlights of his experiences in town government. He also gave his impressions of how a community such as Woodstock can grow and yet maintain its unique charm. After his remarks there was a question and answer period concerning some of the local problems.

A junior olympic swim meet sponsored by Woodstock Junior Chamber of Commerce will be held at the Swim-o-Links in Woodstock on August 21, from 9 to 11 a. m. Races in three events, the breast stroke, back stroke and free style swimming, will be held with medals awarded to first and second place winners in each event and third place prizes to be announced.

Boys and girls, ages 6-17, are eligible to compete. Admission is free and entry blanks may be obtained at the Swim-o-Links.

Sale for Blind

The annual Woodstock Sale for the Blind, Tuesday, Aug. 17, on the Lutheran Church lawn, offers quality merchandise at reasonable prices. All merchandise is manufactured in the shops of the Albany Association of the Blind.

Mrs. Ivan Freer is acting as general chairman of the sale and is assisted by committees representing the local churches.

BABSON on BUSINESS

By ROGER W. BABSON

PERSONAL INCOME — WILL IT KEEP CLIMBING?

BABSON PARK, Mass., Aug. 5 — The personal income of the people of this country has been skyrocketing over the past few years. Records have been shattered time after time, and there are no signs as yet of a reversal in direction. Recent figures reveal how spectacular the increase has been over the past 12 months.

INCOME GAINS BROADENING STEADILY

As of June of this year, personal income from all sources advanced to a total of $524 billion, according to estimates prepared by the U. S. Department of Commerce. This represents a climb of about $35 billion in the past year alone, or a hefty rise of 7 per cent. Of special significance is the scope of the advances in the leading basic resources: Wages, salaries, corporate dividend payments, and the farm "take." Prices received by farmers for meat animals, in fact, climbed more than 30 per cent in this past year.

It should be noted that all of the major industrial segments of the economy shared in the marked upswing in wages and salaries. Part of this rise was due to the growing numbers of people employed. With a combination of this employment growth and gradually climbing hourly earnings, factory payrolls in June hit a total of $110.8 billion, compared with only $102.7 billion twelve months before.

CORPORATE DIVIDENDS STEADILY WIDENING

Corporate dividend payments have, of course, been on the increase for a number of years. But there is an interesting angle here that is not commonly emphasized. This is the tremendous broadening of individual stock ownership. A 1965 stockholder census taken by the New York Stock Exchange shows an 18 per cent increase from 1962, the date of the last previous census. This carries the number of individual shareholders to the all-time record high of 20,120,000.

Loans Actor's Items

DETROIT (AP)—Mrs. Brace Beemer, widow of the actor who played the Lone Ranger on radio for many years, has loaned the Detroit Historical Museum her husband's collection of silver bullets, guns, costume and other Western items. Beemer died last March at his ranch near Oxford, Mich.

Broadening the base of ownership to such a degree means that the American people have undoubtedly a greater interest than ever before in the management and operation of our businesses. This added income from dividend payments also becomes a greater support for consumer optimism along a wide front. This is a contributive reason for what may well be the lowest ebb in buyer resistance ever recorded in this nation. The quick turnover of expensive merchandise and services, purely luxury and "status" items, gives proof of an unprecedentedly bright consumer psychology.

Uncertainties No Dampener

As yet neither the stock market downside which began last May nor the ominous clouds over Vietnam have disheartened the general buying public. A recent survey for testing consumer attitudes, conducted by the University of Michigan, reveals that buyer sentiment is generally more enthusiastic about business prospects for the next five years than it was in 1964. Neither the stock losses nor growing international tension offset the sense of security brought about by pay hikes and better job opportunities.

Naturally, the big question is whether the upward pressures will persist in personal income. Even with the population rising rapidly, employment could continue as it is. At least for the next few years there will be, if anything, too few skilled workers available rather than too many. Built-in wage and fringe concessions might hoist pay rates still higher. Even if war escalation should now bring controls, it is unlikely that personal income would stop edging upward. A solid backlog is assured from interest, dividend payments, various government benefits, and well-sustained salary rates.

The President's speech of last week should be a help rather than a hindrance to business. He showed the strain of his enormous burden, but he should certainly not feel discouraged; he is doing an excellent job at the helm. We must remember, however, that an unexpected event could always happen and change things—either for the better or the worse—at any time.

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold has risen sharply in European markets at a time when the United States would be especially happy if it would go down instead.

A jump of 1½ cents an ounce on the London Bullion Exchange Thursday brought the price to $35.19½ an ounce, highest since November 1961.

More Tempting

The official price at the U.S. Treasury is $35, with a little over 8 cents added as a handling charge when gold is sold.

The Treasury has been losing gold at an increased rate this year. Any jump in its price overseas makes it just that more tempting for other nations to turn in their surplus dollars for gold from the U.S. reserves.

But the current rush of European speculators to buy gold—particularly to turn in their pound sterling holdings for the metal—seems unlikely to get out of hand as it threatened to do in the fall of 1960. Then the price rose temporarily to $40 an ounce, and the big target was the U.S. dollar.

The 1960 speculative raid on gold reserves led to a five-year drive by the United States to cut the deficit in its monetary transactions with the rest of the world, and thus re-establish firmly the reputation and value of the Yankee dollar.

In the second quarter of this year the latest efforts in this drive have given the United States a surplus in its balance of payments—for the first time since 1957. The successful move was to get U.S. corporations to cut back on overseas investments and American banks to curb loans to foreign governments and individuals.

Drain Continues

Even so the drain of gold has continued, with France especially turning in its surplus dollars for the metal.

The gold speculative fever that seems to have been revived by Britain's troubles with its own balance of payments is linked to rumors that London may have to devalue the pound again. Any such intention has been firmly denied.

But the rush to buy gold and bid up its price might have the side effect of leading other nations to turn in more surplus dollars—built up by years of U.S. payments deficits—for U.S. Treasury gold.

Britain's troubles in defending the pound sterling are real enough. And Washington has been lending the Bank of England dollars with which to defend the pound from speculative raids.

London has also been selling its large holdings of U.S. securities to raise dollars. Such sales came at a time when U.S. stock markets were under pressure built up by domestic uncertainties. How much the British dumping of stocks contributed to stock price weakness here is debatable.

But with the growing war in Viet Nam, the United States must spend more for military goods. It must also defend its dollar from any speculative raids built on doubts abroad as to the effects of war on the U.S. domestic economy.

Doubtless Washington will go on helping London defend the pound sterling and perhaps lend Britain a helping hand in its efforts to get its financial house in order.

Today is Friday, Aug. 6, the 218th day of 1965. There are 147 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1945, a U.S. B29 dropped our first atomic bomb — on Hiroshima, Japan. More than half the city was reduced to ashes; more than 78,000 persons were killed and some 200,000 others were casualties.

On this date in 1763, British troops were victorious in the Battle of Bushy Run, near Pittsburgh. It was the first engagement since Braddock's defeat.

In 1778, Conrad Alexandre Gerard of France, the first foreign minister to come to the United States from a European power, was received by Congress.

In 1926, Gertrude Ederle became the first woman to swim the English Channel.

In 1937, the United States signed a trade agreement with Russia.

In 1943, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the U.S. victory at Munda, New Georgia.

Ten years ago — Leftist organizations in Japan demonstrated against plans to expand American air bases in their homeland.

Five years ago — The State Department announced that two missing employees, traced to Mexico and Cuba, had no access to classified information about U.S. weapons or defense plans.

One year ago — President Johnson conferred with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant in the White House in a private meeting.

TIME FOR MORAL FORCE

This is war, said President Johnson the other day.

It is, indeed, even if his anxiously awaited announcement of immediate U.S. plans for the struggle in Viet Nam mercifully fell short of the most pessimistic predictions. For thousands more American families, however, the war is becoming a real and frightening thing.

But it is a war different from the kind this country is used to. Except for the faltering South Vietnamese, we are virtually alone—with no allies, either Asian or Western, no sanction from the United Nations as in Korea, precious little support even from our NATO partners.

Despite all the warnings from all the experts, we find ourselves enmeshed in fighting the wrong war—at least in a strictly military sense—in the wrong place at the wrong time against the wrong enemy.

It is not a war of conflict between armies, of mass movement and strategy, but a frustrating groping for a clever and dedicated and elusive enemy. It is a war whose real casualties are women and children, their homes and villages, their means of livelihood. It is a war to sicken the stomach of the most battle-hardened veteran.

It is a war that, for one reason alone, for burned and maimed children of Viet Nam, humanity cries out must be terminated.

The United States is following what it believes the only course that can lead to this desired end, without sacrificing the right to freedom of Vietnamese children yet unborn.

What the rest of an alarmed and critical but nonparticipating world?

All our overtures for armistice and negotiation have been rebuffed by the Communists. The President is appealing to the United Nations to use all its resources and prestige to bring peace to Viet Nam.

It must soon make an answer. It must do more than that.

The moral force of the world, if such exists, must be brought to bear to accomplish what all our arms and diplomacy have so far failed to do. At the very least, the attempt must be made.

CHAINS OF CLOVER

Just about the time one gives up the good old days and decides the world is full of nothing but Vietnam and sonic booms and television commercials, something happens that rekindles interest in the past as well as our faith in human nature. Clover chains, for example.

The other day we heard about two of them with a combined length of 180 feet, made by two small girls with an average age of nine and a half. It is encouraging that such important contributions to the welfare of mankind are still being made in 1965. We thought they were gone forever.

The importance of making clover chains is not to be underestimated. Although some persons find it necessary to defend this activity as an excellent exercise in manual dexterity and creative therapy, we find the charm of clover chain-making primarily in the fact that the finished product has no practical use whatsoever. There aren't many things about which that can be said. Also, one can travel a long way on a clover chain—back into childhood. It is a trip worth making from time to time.

COAST GUARD MILESTONE

On August 4, 1790, the First Congress of the United States authorized the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase 10 vessels for "securing the collection of revenues."

That tiny fleet, originally called the Revenue-Marine and for eight years the only sea-going armed force of the young country, was the beginning of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Today, the thousands of men of this service, with scores of ships and planes, not only continue to carry out their traditional duty of patrolling the American coast; they sail in every one of the seven seas, from Arctic to Antarctic. They operate and maintain, among other things, a worldwide network of navigation stations, buoys and other aids, a nuclear-powered lighthouse,

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

WILL THE WORLD WAR II SETTLEMENT HOLD?

After every major war there is a settlement and a new status quo. The boundary lines that are established, whether officially or tacitly, must be respected, or else a new cycle of war begins.

World War II was no exception to the rule. A great semi-circle was drawn through the Eurasian continent, from the Baltic Sea through the heart of Germany and on around to the waist of Korea. The Communists, probing the western nations' willingness to defend the settlement, tried successively to bite off Greece, Iran, Turkey, West Berlin, South Korea, the Philippines, Iraq, Laos, and Lebanon. In all instances they were thrown back. Tough little Harry Truman recovered from the delusions of Potsdam in time to promulgate the Truman Doctrine, which kept the Communists from subverting Turkey and Greece. General Lucius Clay saved West Berlin. The Communist Hubs were suppressed in the Philippines. The UN "police action" in Korea preserved the status quo in that divided country. In mainland China there was a Red revolution from within, which the West was unable or unwilling to do anything about. But the revolution was stopped at Formosa Strait, and the forces of Mao Tse-tung have never been able to seize Chiang Kai-shek's outpost islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Along the semi-circle that runs from the Baltic Sea round to the waist of Korea there has been one soft spot: Southeast Asia. There the Reds have succeeded in taking over a part of Laos. But this is not a major breakthrough. If the Communists should succeed in capturing South Vietnam, however, the post-World War II settlement will have been shattered. It would be the equivalent of Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland and subsequent seizure of Austria and the Czech Sudetenland, a signal to the world that the old balance of power no longer holds. The bigger, more fateful, showdown would then loom.

It is popular, in certain quarters today, to say that the United States cannot "police the world." Walter Lippmann pounds away at this thesis night and day. But policing the settlement achieved in a victorious war is not an attempt to become a global cop; it is merely a business of trying to hold one's own. The United States, for better or worse, did not go to the rescue of the Hungarian revolutionists in the mid-Fifties, for Hungary was on the Soviet side of the post-World War II line. Again, for better or worse, we have made no real attempt to deny Castro's right to rule inside Cuba; our significant actions in the Caribbean and Central American area have been limited to preventing Cuba, Guatemala, and the Dominican Republic from becoming Soviet offensive outposts in the western hemisphere. True enough, Castro has, in a sense, breached the World War II settlement lines by abetting Moscow's efforts to subvert governments in Venezuela, northeast Brazil and elsewhere. But our diplomacy, having made the initial mistake of letting Castro get away with it when he proclaimed himself a Marxist-Leninist "until the day I die," has performed valiantly in the attempt to seal off Cuba as an offensive unit in the Soviet coalition.

The difference between trying to "police the world" and trying to maintain the settlement achieved by a victorious war is, no doubt, a subtle one. For when it comes to trying to police what might be termed an extended neighborhood it may very well seem that we are trying to protect everyone, everywhere. But if we had really set up shop as a global policeman we would have gone to the rescue of the Hungarians with tanks and planes. We would have moved to tear down the Berlin Wall. And we would have heeded the cry of the Tibetans for help against the Red Chinese.

In his bones Lyndon Johnson knows that South Vietnam could become the Rhineland and the Sudetenland of today. It is not a question of trying to "police the world." It is merely a matter of trying to keep a status quo from breaking down. When Rome withdrew her legions from the Scottish wall and from "Rhineland orchard and Danube fen," the barbarians thronged through the gaps. But the "Roman peace" had lasted for five hundred years. If the West lets its own walls crumble, our peace will have lasted for exactly two decades.

No Cancer Danger In Suntan Lotions

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—A recent magazine article said that suntan lotions cause skin cancer. Is this true?

A—You may be misquoting the article. Excessive exposure of the skin to the sun is a factor in some skin cancers. The Food and Drug Administration does not permit the sale of any cosmetics that could even remotely favor cancer of the skin or any other organ.

Q—What is global hysteria? What treatment is recommended?

A—Global hysteria is a feeling that there is a lump in the throat that is severe enough to swallow difficult. There is no lump or tumor but a severe spasm of the muscles in the throat instead. It is caused by an emotional upset. The most effective treatment would be to use a tranquilizer for a few days and find a calmer way of life.

Q—Last winter Novrad cleared up a cough that had not responded to numerous antibiotics. Will continuous use cause any side effects?

A—Levopropoxyphene (Novrad) in the prescribed dosage will not cause side effects in most persons. In a few, however, it may cause a skin rash, nausea, nervous tension, drowsiness or dizziness. These usually disappear if the dosage is reduced.

Q—I am a 67-year-old housewife. My doctor says I have a cavernous lymphangioma. He says I can live with it if it doesn't get any worse. What do you think?

A—A lymphangioma is a vessel tumor. It is not malignant. Such tumors usually consist of a group of cysts and so might be called cavernous. If the tumor does not cause any pain or discomfort due to pressure on vital organs no treatment is necessary. If it is troublesome it can be removed.

Q—What is erythroblastic leukemia? Is there any treatment for it?

A—This is a rare form of leukemia in which large numbers of immature red blood cells are found in the blood. It is highly malignant. Although several drugs have been found to have a delaying action on leukemia there is as yet no cure.

Q—I'm in my early fifties. My doctor says I have anemia. Could this cause numbness in my arms and legs and tongue or is this due to something else?

A—Numbness with or without tingling in the tongue and extremities is a common symptom of pernicious anemia.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of The Kingston Daily Freeman. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) —

President Johnson's decision to double the draft means that if you are 19 or 20 years old your chances of being called up this year are somewhat greater than in the past few months.

Exactly how far the Selective Service will reach down depends to a considerable degree on conditions in each draft area.

Who will be exempted depends in many (perhaps in most) cases on the discretion of the local draft board. Therefore no hard predictions can be laid down.

The men who do the planning here in Washington believe that in the foreseeable future the draft will be limited to single men between the ages of 19 to 26, as in the past.

The planners aren't aiming at calling up married men. They expect the local boards to begin with the oldest single men in the 19 to 26 bracket and work down. In the recent past men have usually been called up around 21 or in the latter part of their 20th year. Now more 20-year-olds and probably some numbers of 19-year-olds will get the nod.

LOCAL DRAFT BOARDS

ARE expected on the whole to be a little tougher in deciding who will and won't be deferred for schooling. Just how the criteria will change again depends on the local boards. No new instructions are being sent out from Washington.

A local board might decide, for example that all or part of its part-time students would no longer be exempted.

Students in certain "non-essential" courses of study could lose their deferment rights. This would, of course, vary from community to community.

In the same way, local boards will probably make it more difficult for a man to be deferred because of being in an important critical occupation—meaning an essential occupation in short supply in the area.

These critical skills, for example, could be scientists at Cape Kennedy or school teachers in a town short of schoolmarm. Local boards will undoubtedly decide that some occupations are not as critical as they'd been assuming.

Boards will take another look at single men who claim deferment because they're supporting a relative.

THUS WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN is a small but appreciable tightening up all around the country. The tightening in one town is likely to be quite different from that in another.

The President talked of a monthly draft of 35,000 men. This compares with Korean War calls which ranged roughly from 25,000 to a peak of 80,000 a month.

Draft experts at Selective Service and the Pentagon point out, however, that the mid-tightening which they talk about could shift if the present rules don't bring in the men—or if the President decided on an additional sharp increase in the draft.

If the local draft boards say the men aren't available under present criteria, then physical and mental requirements could be lowered and deferments made even tougher. It's not likely that married men would be touched even then, unless, of course, there is a further sharp expansion of the war, or so experts here reason.

Officials here are optimistic. They believe the mid-tightenings outlined above will be sufficient to meet the doubled draft call announced by President Johnson.

The Nation's Constitution And the Voting Rights Bill

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—History may record as a "day of infamy" Aug. 6, 1965, when the voting-rights bill was enacted into law. For, while the objective of the measure — to secure equal voting rights for citizens irrespective of race or color — is worthy and meritorious, the method used to attain this end must inevitably shock the conscience of anyone who holds that the Constitution of the United States explicitly gives only to the states the right to stipulate what tests or qualifications may be used to register a voter.

The new law goes even further—it assumes the right of the Federal government to suspend voter tests on mere suspicion that they are being abused. Even more palpably unconstitutional is the insertion of a paragraph in the new law which has the effect of doing with race or color what would prohibit a state from requiring a person to be able to read or write or understand the English language in order to be eligible to vote. This is a flagrant example of how the Federal government is usurping the right of the states to determine their own voter qualifications.

There are also provisions in the law designed to prevent otherwise legitimate tests from being used to discriminate against a citizen on account of race or color. The purpose is a good one, because the Fifteenth Amendment of the Constitution does say clearly that no citizen shall be deprived of his right to vote because of race or color. Never before, however, has Congress sought by law to adjudicate a state or city or county guilty of wrongdoing and punishable for such alleged offenses merely because of suspicion.

No state, moreover, has hitherto been deprived of its right to set voter qualifications just because census figures may show that a certain percentage of non-whites didn't happen to be registered.

tered to vote in a previous election.

The new statute also declares that, if a provision requiring a test of reading or writing ability or evidence of good moral character is abused in a few cases, that same method of determining voter qualifications cannot be used legitimately to qualify or disqualify any other voters, either. The states under the new law thus lose, in effect, their right to set voter qualifications for anybody.

On the subject of poll taxes, the new law would take away an inherent right of the states to require payment of such taxes as a condition for voting in state elections. This kind of tax is imposed on both whites and non-whites to help pay the costs of elections. Congress took the proper course when it approved the Twenty-Fourth Amendment to the Constitution, which was ratified by the states and proclaimed on Jan. 23, 1964. This amendment forbids poll taxes to be levied as a condition for voting in Federal elections. If poll taxes in state elections were barred, this was the way to do it—by including such a prohibition in the Twenty-Fourth Amendment.

The Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to the Constitution—which now are theoretically relied upon as a basis for abolishing state poll taxes—bar discrimination in voting by reason of race or color. But as long as every voter in when it appears to pay the poll tax, it is not subject to Federal Control or regulation. Yet the new voting law now imposes an unprecedented restriction covering state elections. It says:

"The Congress finds that the requirements of the payment of a poll tax as a pre-condition to voting (1) precludes persons of limited means from voting or imposes unreasonable financial hardship upon such persons as a precondition to their exercise of the franchise, (2) does not bear a reasonable relationship to any legitimate state interest in the conduct of elections, and (3) in some areas has the purpose or effect of denying persons the right to vote because of race or color. Upon the basis of these findings, Congress declares that the Constitutional right of citizens to vote is denied or abridged in some areas by the requirement of the payment of a poll tax as a precondition to voting."

The poll tax in Virginia amounts to only $1.50 per person. No other poll tax exceeds $2. If Congress can arbitrarily decide that such a payment imposes a "financial hardship" on some citizens because they cannot raise this sum for a poll-tax payment, then the Congress in the future may decide that any other state taxes can also be forbidden because they may impose a "financial hardship."

An overwhelming majority in both houses of Congress has approved the new legislation on the theory that "the end justifies the means." It is being assumed that the American people don't much care if the Constitution is trampled on now because it has been circumvented by local authorities before. Two wrongs, however, do not make a single right.

U. S. Finds Itself In Muddle on Aid To India, Pakistan

By CONRAD FINK

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — Trying to be all things to all people, the United States has gotten into a diplomatic muddle in the Indian subcontinent.

A policy of equal treatment for two nations that are bitter foes has brought Washington little prestige in either India or Pakistan.

Harsh Facts

The harsh facts are these: In the past 14 years, the United States has put more than $11.6 billion of economic and military aid into Pakistan and neighboring India.

The aim was a "joint defense" against communism.

Yet Pakistan today openly is voicing hostility to Washington while rapidly strengthening ties with Communist China and other "socialist" nations.

India, at best, is scornful of American foreign policy and Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri rarely bypasses the opportunity to be critical of the way President Johnson is running the Viet Nam War.

Americans in this subcontinent are asking themselves how this happened.

One answer that keeps coming up among these Americans is that, from the very beginning of its involvement in the subcontinents, the United States has misunderstood the situation.

First, this reasoning goes, the United States falsely assumed that bundles of dollars and the example of "the American way" somehow could make non-Asians out of the 580 million Asians in the subcontinent and somehow provide Western solutions to Asian problems.

Wrong Assessment

Some Americans say the United States completely underestimated the bitterness between India and Pakistan and this inevitably doomed Washington's attempt to play both sides of the street.

There is evidence to support these points.

Both Shastri and President Ayub Khan of Pakistan are making a big pitch for influence in the Afro-Asian world, often to the detriment of ties with the United States.

Neither leader has forgotten he is Asian and that his country and its problems must be viewed in the Asian context.

Ayub, at one time considered by many to be a firm American ally, constantly makes it clear that while Washington is thousands of miles away in the West he and Pakistan are in the East — next door to China.

Pakistan must normalize relations with its neighbors, he says, and "Pakistan is looking for friends not masters."

Dear Abby . . . Age-Old Problem

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be facing this problem, but I am. To get right to the point, our 15-year-old daughter is "in trouble." The boy is 16. They went steady for a year. I never suspected anything like this could happen. He is such a nice boy from a good family, and we never dreamed our daughter was in danger with him. We have already talked to the boy and his parents. His parents say they will do anything we decide on. The boy says he would rather not get married, but if he has the choice of either getting married or being sent to a reformatory or a work farm, he'll marry her. Our daughter doesn't say anything, she just cries. My husband says we should force a marriage immediately. I think we should send her to a home for unwed mothers, give up the baby for adoption, and try to live down this awful mess. No outsiders know about this and we want to keep it quiet. Can you help us?

LIVING A NIGHTMARE

DEAR LIVING: No one can "force" a boy or man to marry. And it's just as well. An unwilling bridegroom makes a miserable husband and a worse father. I agree with you. Under the circumstances, your daughter would probably be better off in a home for unwed mothers. If you want the names of some homes in your area, I can provide them if you send me your name and address. No other information is necessary, and it will be strictly confidential. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and have a problem which bugs me. I have an English pen pal about my age. She writes these real long letters telling me how popular she is and how many dates she has. She brags all over the place about her different romances and all the places she goes. I am getting awfully fed up with reading all these lies and, besides, she is giving me an inferiority complex. I would like to quit writing to her. Should I just write and tell her I think she is a liar and I don't believe a word she says? Sign me —

"BUGGED"

DEAR BUGGED: It isn't necessary to be unkind or insulting. If your pen pal "bugs" you, gradually reduce the correspondence and then let it die.

DEAR ABBY: Whatever happened to the social amenities and the gracious approach? I have just received an "invitation" to a "show-er by mail" with no suggestions of a social gathering. It is just an out and out commercial promotion to send the bride a gift. Surely when giving a shower, the hostess should make a social occasion of it, honoring the bride, offering good fellowship, and a bit of refreshment — the gift being a by-product, not the whole end in itself. If one knows the bride well enough, one would send a gift without being "invited" to do so. Surely our new generation is not so totally selfish and ignorant of tradition as to put on such a shoddy show of commercialism as this.

Please print something to forestall this sort of thing before it becomes commonplace.

DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: People of breeding do not "commercialize" an occasion to acquire loot. And those who do are beyond educating.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived through most of the problems I have read about in your column, and my wife gave up trying to understand me forty years ago. In the good old days if a wife had any fault to find with her husband she kept it to herself for in those days there was no aid to dependent children and it was too far to walk to the poor house.

Respectfully yours,

Reports Railmen, Families Covered By Health Bill

Railroad employees and their families are eligible for the same health insurance bill that was signed into law by President Johnson July 30, according to Henry J. Lynch, manager of the Railroad Retirement Board's New York district office.

Two health insurance programs for aged persons were established by the new legislation. The first is a hospital insurance plan that will pay most of the costs of hospital and related care. The second is a voluntary medical insurance plan that will pay a substantial part of doctor bills and certain other medical expenses. Both programs will start in July 1966.

The hospital insurance plan will be financed by special taxes on employees and employers. Railroad employees and employers will pay these taxes at the same rates as persons covered by the social security system. The voluntary plan will be financed by premiums of $3 a month from the aged persons who choose the additional coverage and by matching contributions from the Federal Government.

All persons aged 65 or older who are receiving a monthly benefit from the Railroad Retirement Board will automatically participate in the hospital insurance program. They will receive literature in the mail describing the new health insurance programs, along with a form on which they can apply for the supplementary medical insurance coverage. If a beneficiary enrolls in the supplementary plan, the premiums will be deducted from his monthly checks.

Aged persons not receiving monthly benefits are also eligible for health insurance coverage. Railroad employees aged 65 and over may obtain information about participating in the health insurance programs at any Railroad Retirement Board office after Sept. 1. Proof of age will be required along with an application.

Beginning in 1966, railroad employees and their families will pay special taxes earmarked for the hospital insurance program.

The hospital insurance tax rate for each will start at 0.35 per cent in that year and will gradually rise to 0.8 per cent in 1987 and later years.

In New Atomic Age

Oak Ridge Is Now Engaged In Revolutionizing Living

By BILL RAWLINS
OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — At 3 p.m. Aug. 6, 1945, the news reached Oak Ridge: The United States had dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

The secret of the hills of east Tennessee was out.

Slightly more than three years of scientific and technical achievement, from experiment to production, came alive. A new term, "the Atomic Age," was born.

20 Years Have Passed

Looking back 20 years later, Frank Bruce recalls that he wasn't too surprised — he was one of the few Oak Ridge residents who knew. But most of the 15,000 persons here, including Bruce's wife, Priscilla, were just as surprised as the rest of the world.

Ryosaku Tanida, a medical student in Tokyo at the time, didn't believe it. "We still thought it was just a more powerful TNT bomb."

J.L. Liverman was a GI in the Philippines, "expecting to ship out to Japan any minute." After the bomb, he returned to the States.

Of those three, only Bruce was in on the start of the atomic age. But all are Oak Ridge residents now, very much involved in the new atomic age which deals at least as much with saving lives as with destroying them.

Bruce is assistant to the deputy director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory; Dr. Tanida is a permanent staff member of the medical division of Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies; and Dr. Liverman is assistant director of the laboratory's biology division.

Far Cry From Before

In the new Oak Ridge — a far cry from the fenced, closely guarded, camp of World War II they and thousands like them are using nuclear energy technology to save lives and revolutionize living.

They are producing electric power, making fresh water from the sea, seeking cures for cancer and the common cold, increasing food production, studying the universe from Venus to Venus, and — you name it — they're doing it, planning it or thinking about it.

"In just the last two years," says Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, "everything is starting to look good. If you'd had asked us, say, three years ago if the next 20 years of the atomic age would be as exciting as the first 20, I think a lot of us would have had our doubts. But now, I think we can say it will be."

Dr. Liverman is just as enthusiastic. Using centrifuges developed to produce isotopes for medicine and industry, human cells have been broken down and a common cold virus, among other things, isolated in quantities sufficient to study. Eventually, it is hoped to produce effective vaccine.

Looking to Happy Future

In Dr. Tanida's baliwick, medical researchers are developing new and better techniques for treating such things as tumors, malignant and otherwise. Everything in Oak Ridge seems to look forward to a happy future, not back to that bomb 20 years ago.

A short time before the bomb was dropped, Bruce recalls, "there were two factions among the scientific personnel here. One was circulating petitions against using the bomb; the other — and I was in this second group — was quite content to

11 Trumpeter Cygnets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department says trumpeter swans in captivity have produced young in the United States for the first time in more than 100 years.

Within the past few weeks, two zoos reported a total of 11 trumpeter cygnets — five at the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens and the others at City Park in Great Bend, Kan. It is now estimated there are from 700 to 750 wild birds.

Current of the Amazon River flows at about one and one-half miles an hour in the dry season.

leave this up to the military."

The graphite reactor, which started it all, has long since been shut down as obsolete. Oak Ridge's huts and massed trailer homes have given way to houses which look like those in any other city. Its mud has been paved, its streets widened, its boardwalks made concrete. But somehow, 20 years later, the excitement of pioneering, of doing something vital, remains.

Richland People Near Plant Innocent About Atom Bomb

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — History's best-kept secret exploded on a stunned world 20 years ago at Hiroshima and few people were more surprised than the majority of the thousands of workers producing a vital ingredient for the atom bomb in the sagebrush flats near Richland.

There is a story, legendary here, of a boy who said he knew what all those people were building — light bulbs and toilet paper.

"That," he said, "is what my daddy keeps bringing home in his lunch bucket."

"I had things all figured out after I saw all that yellow-green gas coming from the area," recalled Mrs. Arthur Mook, one of the workers. "I knew it was mustard gas — until the day of the announcement."

Although they learned what they were doing, the workers at the atomic plant could claim no share in the first bomb, powered by uranium. They were producing plutonium, the first man-made element, which was used in the bomb dropped on Nagasaki three days later.

The government, striving to keep the secret, had unbelievable cooperation from the people of the region and from the plant employees. Contrary to popular belief, many did know or guess the project's purpose but none spoke.

W. J. Morrell, who has just retired as a division manager for the Atomic Energy Commission, then was a captain in the Army Corps of Engineers.

"I didn't try to figure it out," he said. "I didn't want to know. One captain did conclude they were splitting the atom and he was shipped out right away."

The mystery was deep for the people who were brought out and moved out of the tiny neighboring towns of Richland, Hanford and White Bluffs.

"They only told us they were taking the farms to help the boys in the Army," said Blanche Martin, who reinvested the money from her farm in a grape vineyard near Prosser, Wash.

Robley Johnson, who was head of plant photography, said he was told the secret when assigned the preparation of pictures for the public announcement.

He said he noted one of the widely distributed pictures of Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan Project, had a reference on the back to an atomic bomb plant.

"When I pointed this out to security forces," said Johnson, "there was quite a furor for a few minutes. Then they just told me to go on with what I was doing."

Herbert M. Parker now is consultant to the manager of Battelle Northwest Laboratories. Then he was head of radiation protection and knew the secret. Occasionally the scientists, he said, thought of the peacetime possibilities of the atom.

"Power possibilities were obvious from the day we learned what heat reaction was," said Parker. "We also saw a great future for the use of isotopes in medicine and research—but in those days they were just a headache." Isotopes were in the waste material the disposal of which was a perplexing problem.

"Only a few here were opposed to the bomb," said Parker. "The belief was that we were here to make an explosive atomic device, and we got about the job."

A Look at Status of Workers If T-H Section Is Repealed

EDITORS NOTE — Will elimination of state laws banning the union shop force thousands of workers to join unions — even if the unions are allegedly corrupt or the workers have other ethical objections? Some Republicans in Congress have made this charge in fighting repeal of the federal law that now permits the states to bar union shops. Organized labor and Democratic supporters, halfway to victory with House approval of a bill to kill the state laws, insist no one can be forced to join a union to keep his job. Who is right?

By NEIL GILBRIDE

WASHINGTON (AP)—If your employer negotiates a union shop labor contract, can the union legally force you to become a member to keep your job? The answer appears to be no, although neither side in the current congressional fight over the issue has emphasized it. The union can force you to pay dues but it can't force you to join. This is true in the 31 states where the union shop is now legal, and would apply to all states if organized labor is successful in its drive to kill the 19 state laws that now ban the union shop. It is true even though the Taft-Hartley Act says a union and employer can negotiate a contract requiring "membership" in the union as a condition of employment.

Fight Over Section 14B

The current fight in Congress is over repeal of section 14B of Taft-Hartley, which now permits any state to ban the union shop. Nineteen states enacted such laws and many other states have been the scene of bitter battles over the issue.

Repeal of 14B, which already has passed the House and appears headed for passage in the Senate, would make union shop contracts legal in all states.

Opponents charge the union shops means "compulsory unionism."

But even though the federal law uses the word "membership," the National Labor Relations Board has ruled and been upheld by the courts that payment of dues and initiation fees is enough to satisfy the law.

This, in effect, is the "agency shop."

"Basically, all we get by repealing 14B is an agency shop," said a spokesman for the AFL-CIO.

The agency shop basically satisfies labor's argument against workers who take wage gains won by the union but refuse to join and help pay the costs of bargaining.

Must Bargain for All

Under federal law, a union must bargain for all workers in a plant whether or not they are union members.

Under the agency shop, workers who oppose joining a union pay their way but don't have to join.

Under the union shop, they not only must pay the dues but have to join the union.

But the NLRB, in a 1949 case soon after Taft-Hartley was enacted, said: "The employee having offered to pay the dues and fees has done all that can be legally asked of him."

In other words, the union can accept or refuse the dues but cannot then demand the employee be fired for refusing to join.

Upheld by Court

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago upheld the ruling and in 1951 the Supreme Court refused to review it, thus leaving the decision of the lower court standing.

The case involved three employees of Union Starch & Refining Co. in Granite City, Ill. They agreed to pay dues under a union shop contract but refused to attend a union meeting of take an oath of allegiance to the union.

The company fired them at the demand of the Grain Processors Independent Union but the NLRB ordered them reinstated.

The Court of Appeals, in agreeing with the board, said it was not the intent of Congress that anyone be fired for any reason except refusing to pay dues and initiation fees.

About Assessments

Presumably, this could be extended to require payment of any special assessments levied on all members of the union.

The ruling by the NLRB was a close one—a 3 to 2 vote, but subsequent board rulings have agreed with the majority decision and it has never been successfully challenged in court.

With the nationwide debate centering on the repeal of 14B, it is conceivable the issue could come up again and eventually find its way to the Supreme Court.

While labor spokesmen have made the point that no one would be forced to join a union if 14B is repealed, they have not stressed it.

Obviously, they would prefer that employees under a union shop contract become active members of the union—not just dues payers.

The Right to Work Committee and Republican allies fighting repeal haven't mentioned the point at all—drumming hard on the charge of forced union membership.

Can't Use Force

But under questioning, both sides generally agree.

Asked whether any worker could be forced into a union against his will, the AFL-CIO replied "Absolutely not."

Rep. Robert P. Griffin, Republican leader of the unsuccessful House fight against repeal, concedes the point but adds:

"I think it is a technical distinction without very much practical meaning. It just makes some people feel a little better." Reed Larson, executive vice president of the Right to Work Committee, contends "It's an inconsequential point."

He cites the case of three workers who refused to join a union for religious reasons in Indiana after that state last January repealed its law banning the union shop.

Larson said the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists tried to force three members of the Christadelphian sect to become union members under a union shop contract at the Arkla Air Conditioning Co. in Evansville.

The case was settled without a court fight when the three were permitted to pay the equivalent of union dues without joining the union.

Robert H. Brown, a Machinists official, said:

"The workers are completely satisfied with the way in which we responded to their beliefs and allowed them to remain on their jobs, and the way in which the union continues to secure gains and benefits for them."

One of the three men later joined the union, Brown said.

Commenting on the Evansville case, Frank C. McAllister of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce said the Christadelphians negotiated "their own little agency shop."

Insurance Companies Total $3 Billion, Investments

Life insurance companies' mortgage investments in New York totaled $3,269,057,000 at the end of 1964, according to the Institute of Life Insurance.

This was an increase of $182,141,000 or 6 per cent during the year, in financing of New York homes, apartments, offices, stores, farms and other real estate by the nation's life companies.

The state's year-end total included $3,256,714,000 in residential and commercial mortgages (up $183,029,000 or 6 per cent from 1963) and $12,343,000 in farm mortgages.

For Future Use

These are mostly funds set aside to meet the life insurance companies' future obligations to policyholders. Until needed, the money is put to work in the nation's economy, helping to finance the growth of each state. Earnings from these investments help to keep down the cost of life insurance to policyholders.

The life companies' residential and commercial mortgage investments in New York at the end of 1964 included $2,952,409,000 in conventional mortgages, $240,615,000 in home loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration and $63,690,000 in home loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

Further Breakdown

These investments covered 54,770 individual mortgages, including 53,290 residential and commercial and 1,480 farm mortgages. The residential and commercial loans included 40,910 conventional, 4,980 F.H.A. and 7,400 V.A. mortgages.

The nation's life insurance companies had $54,003,534,000 invested in mortgages throughout the United States, an increase of $4,485,804,000 or 9.1 per cent during 1964.

California had the largest amount, $7,541,640,000, and showed by far the largest dollar increase over 1963. Texas was second, with $5,424,507,000. New York was third, with $3,269,057,000. Illinois with $2,566,388,000 and Ohio with $2,415,873,000 were fourth and fifth.

Loans in Canada, Puerto Rico and other countries brought the total mortgage investments of U. S. life insurance companies to $55,152,364,000.

About Dirksen's New Try

Supreme Court Decisions Stand Rigid Through Years

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — He made a good try — and he said he'll try again — but the attempt of Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois to undo what the Supreme Court did on reapportionment got nowhere, which is not unusual.

Dissatisfied people in and out of Congress have been trying to curb the court, rebuke it, or change its decisions through its 175-year history, and never more than in recent years.

Those attempts must have run into the thousands. Very few succeeded. And most of the changes or reversals in the court's decisions have been made by the court itself.

Nevertheless state governors, legislators, members of Congress, associations, groups and individuals with placards and petitions have demanded change.

Luckily for the court, this is what happened most of the time: There was seldom a united demand for change. Instead, the cries of pain usually came from one group at a time, each in turn as it felt its own special interests injured.

Dirksen, leader of the Senate Republicans, had a lot of company from politicians — although, as it turned out, not enough — in his protest against the court's memorable 1964 decision.

Following its one man, one vote doctrine, the court said members of both houses of a state legislature must be elected on a basis of equal representation for the people making up a state population.

This meant fewer politicians from the rural districts, with their dwindling populations, would sit in state legislatures because the old apportionment plans had become unreal and unfair as more people moved to the cities.

Dirksen tried to get the Senate to approve a proposed constitutional amendment which could cut the court decision in half by letting each state decide how members of at least one house in a legislature should be elected.

The Senate turned him down Wednesday.

Previous Pain

While the court's legislative apportionment decision had caused a lot of pain this was nothing compared with the outraged cries after the court's rulings in 1954, 1962 and 1964.

In 1954 it banned segregation public schools and in 1962 and 1963 it banned compulsory official prayers or Bible reading in public schools. Attempts were made to undo these rulings, too, and they got nowhere.

There were times when protests and dissatisfaction counted.

In 1895 the court declared an income tax unconstitutional. But the country needed revenue and in 1913, which was 18 years later, the nation adopted the 16th Amendment making the income tax constitutional.

And in the early 1930s the highly conservative court of those days went so far in knocking out New Deal legislation that President Franklin D. Roosevelt asked Congress in 1937 to approve a "court-packing" plan to add more justices.

Does About Face

Congress refused but the embarrassed court, apparently rendered deeply self-conscious, did an about face and began approving legislation Roosevelt wanted.

Here are a few examples of criticism of the court:

In 1956, two years after the public school desegregation decision, 100 Southern members of Congress signed a "manifesto" saying the court had abused its power.

The court was attacked by Presidents Andrew Jackson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt. In the last century its stand against state legislatures almost brought revolts from Virginia, Kentucky, Wisconsin and Pennsylvania.

There have been petitions to impeach Chief Justice Earl Warren and bills in Congress to deprive the court of the power to reverse the decisions of congressional committees or to allow Congress or even the Senate to overrule a court decision.

And in 1956 Sen. George A. Smathers, Florida Democrat, proposed that a Supreme Court justice must have served five years on a lower federal court or a state supreme court before he could be appointed to the U.S. Supreme Court. Only two of the seven men who have been chief justices in this century had the experience Smathers wanted.

Over the years the attempts made to punish the court or undo its decisions have been — in kind and number — fantastic.

A GRIM LOOK AT TAXES—Edward F. Hritz, director of District State Sales Tax Office which is responsible for administration of new state two per cent sales tax, outlines new tax structure and its effect on consumer and vendor during session sponsored by Uptown Businessmen's Association Thursday night in Governor Clinton Hotel. Approximately 200 merchants, contractors and other businessmen from throughout Ulster County turned out for session, which was highlighted by question-and-answer period which lasted more than an hour. A cross-section of local merchants and business men — consulted today about new tax and presentation of informative session — said there was general dissatisfaction with new tax, which they also termed as "confusing." apply on resale; "restaurants are separate regardless of taxable items," "composite sales tax is divided," "How do you report used tax?" "if it is consumable?" "religious, educational, scientific and volunteer fire departments are exempt;" "you cannot assume the tax yourself;" "it is taxable as a capital improvement;" "you cannot tax a deposit on a bottle," and "you can't absorb the tax."

Calls for Order

At one period during the question-and-answer session, London interrupted to bring order when a number of the audience started talking among themselves. He said that if those attending had their questions answered they were free to leave in order for those who hadn't had their questions answered to be heard.

London also said that Hritz wasn't responsible for the new sales tax and should be afforded the courtesy of a guest speaker extending a special service. The audience was told that if it was dissatisfied with the tax, they should "take it up with your congressman."

A number of persons flocked to the speakers' table to ask questions of Hritz at the conclusion of the question-and-answer period.

Unionist Proud To Cut Wages, Vacation Time

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The head of Cuba's electrical workers union says he is proud of cutting the pay, vacation time and benefits of his union members.

He also boasted of increasing the work week from 30 to 44 hours and adding Saturday jobs.

In a Havana radio interview, Felix C. Ronda, secretary general of the Electrical Energy Union, said that since nationalization electrical workers have given up 15 extra days of vacation and now get 30 days, have quit taking a 50 per cent discount in electrical bills, watched their average salaries shaved from $32.51 per month to $26.18, and given up seniority pay.

"Right now we have the same conditions as the rest of the workers," he said. "This is our best contribution to the Socialist society."

Uncover Remains Of Ancient Animals

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — Scientists from the Florida State Museum say they have uncovered remains of a dolphin, a sea cow and sharks that roamed Florida when much of it was covered by water 25 million years ago.

The scientists also say there were remains of animals dating back 30,000 to 100,000 years, including two complete skulls of extinct horses, an abundance of camel bones related to the South American llama, remains of a large bear-sized mammal covered with a large shell, sloth material, and remains from large tortoises and sizeable armadillos.

Denies Red Ties

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas has denied testimony suggesting ties with communism in his past and declared his personal relationship with President Johnson would "absolutely not" interfere with his functioning as a Supreme Court justice.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, considering Johnson's nomination of Fortas to the high court, recessed Thursday after hearing two individuals testify against him. Three senators strongly support him, and Fortas himself testified there is nothing in the past that could bias his judgment. The committee will meet again — and perhaps vote — Tuesday.

Leftkowitz Replies

Attorney General Louis J. Leftkowitz in a reply to Resnick said in part, "We realize our duty. We have our experts and we will get the evidence needed."

He indicated the commission was aware of the importance and seriousness of the problem. At the hearing, the Associated Press reported that Hudson River communities damned New York City's plan to tap the river and suggested the city should do a better job of conserving the water it has.

The criticism came at the opening of a hearing by the State Water Resources Commission on New York City's emergency application to take 100 million gallons waily from the Hudson at Chelsea.

Opponents of the request were so numerous that John T. Thompson, the commission's chief hydraulic engineer, scheduled the hearing to continue tomorrow.

Local Man Named Agent of Month For Prudential

A local insurance salesman, Robert Dawkins of the Kingston office, Prudential Insurance Ordinary Agency has been cited as Agent of the Month for the Hudson Valley Agency.

The announcement was made by Richard J. Bertele, CLU, Agency Manager.

Dawkins received this recognition for his sales achievements in leading all other ordinary agents throughout the seven-county area. He has been associated with the Kingston office for over three years in the sales and service of life insurance.

Hit by Ground Fire

The jet's two-man crew had set an automatic pilot course to the South China Sea and parachuted safely after the plane was hit by ground fire, officials said. But the plane veered around to Nha Trang, apparently because of damage to one engine.

The spokesman said total Viet Cong losses in July may have been as high as 14,000, including defectors and wounded figures on a basis of two guerrillas wounded for each one killed. It generally is admitted, however, that estimates based on such ratios are highly speculative.

Defectors from the Viet Cong during the month totaled 4,130, the spokesman said, including 775 government troops who had previously gone over to the Viet Cong.

Confirmed by Count

The spokesman said that the Viet Cong kill figure was confirmed by body count. He said enemy casualties from air strikes were included but that they, too, were confirmed by body counts on the ground, either by the Vietnamese or by the Americans. Vietnamese body counts often run higher than those by U.S. personnel.

The Viet Cong losses were an indication that the government is "carrying the fighting to the Viet Cong a little better," the spokesman said. He attributed the heavy Communist losses to a sharp increase in the number of small actions during the month in which contact was made with Viet Cong.

Government forces killed 109 guerrillas in scattered fighting Thursday and today, the spokesman reported. In the heaviest action, he said, 67 Communists were killed in a sharp clash Thursday at a special forces camp at Duc Co, in Pleiku Province 215 miles northeast of Saigon.

Vietnamese losses were described as moderate in the fighting, which occurred after a Vietnamese airborne unit was sent as a relief force when the camp came under heavy mortar fire.

Intense Fighting

The spokesman said the fighting was so intense at one point that wounded could not be evacuated. A C123 that made it out of the camp today with 14 wounded Vietnamese was hit by ground fire but was able to continue on to Saigon.

Congressman . . .

say first hand and so there would be no distorted views.

"I cannot under the present circumstances support Mr. Garaghan. I will not appear at any functions that he is at, or appear on any programs in which he participates."

Embarrassing, He Says

The congressman called Garaghan's acceptance of Conservative Party endorsement an "affront to the entire Democratic Party. I felt that he had not consulted with his party committee; had not consulted with his running mates, and put his party in the very embarrassing position of having an affiliation with a political party which is not consistent with Democratic Party principles."

Resnick denied that there was a "split" in the Democratic Party, and that party officials were "just taken in like everyone else was." He said that Garaghan's acceptance of Conservative endorsement was a "stupid move, politically," and "alienated many people" who would otherwise vote the Liberal line.

Number Is Small

Resnick said that there are only 52 registered Conservatives in the city, and that by accepting their endorsement Garaghan "proved to be a political screwball." He said that "It is not possible, in my opinion to be a Democrat and a Conservative." He said that Garaghan was trying "to be all things to all people, — and you just can't do that."

Asserts Position

County political party enrollment for November 1964 shows 389 Conservatives registered in the party, including 61 in the city.

The Ellenville congressman, who has also openly avowed repudiation of the leadership of former City Judge Aaron E. Klein as chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee, said that, "I did not, nor do I wish to get involved in choosing any of the candidates. However, in this particular instance there are unusual circumstances. I feel it is my duty as the highest elected official in this area to oppose Mr. Garaghan's candidacy."

He said, "We (the Democratic Party) are better off losing an election in order to maintain political integrity."

Resnick said that he did not necessarily endorse Joseph Koenig of Kingston, former supervisor and county treasurer, in Koenig's challenge of Klein for county party leadership. The Freeman announced last fall that it was rumored that Koenig would oppose Klein's leadership to Klein's leadership "is no secret," and that he felt that Klein "wasn't getting the job done" as county Democratic chairman. The rift between Klein and Resnick developed after the then-newly elected congressman took issue with Klein's statement that postal jobs would be channeled through the county committee.

Resnick said that he "talked to a number of people concerning the county chairmanship and that he had no preferred candidate at present to succeed Klein. However, he said, his choice would be one "who can start to get things done" within the Democratic Party.

As for the other Democratic candidates in the city, Resnick told The Freeman that both Frank Koenig, former city alderman, and son of Joseph Koenig, candidate for alderman-at-large, and Attorney Hubert Richter, Democratic nominee for city judge, were "fine candidates."

Two Places Entered

Police were notified this morning of a burglary at the Twaalfskil Club, of West O'Reilly Street, of vandalism both inside and outside vacant School No. 3. An unknown amount of money was taken from a cigarette machine at the Twaalfskil Club. Entrance was gained by a rear window. Walls, doors and windows were reported damaged at the school and walls were marked with chalk and crayon. Some of the damage, police believe, dates back to previous times when the building was reported entered.

Tired of Neck And Back Bones: Dr. King Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Ralph Abernethy, assistant to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., says few Negroes are invited to conferences on Negro problems and served tea and cookies.

"We do not want tea and cookies," the Rev. Mr. Abernethy told one of a series of street corner rallies conducted here Thursday by King, adding: "Tell the nation and tell the world we want fire, mignon. We're sick and tired of neck bones and back bones."

Viet Stand Fails to Clarify Reservist-Guard Muddle

BY TOM NOLAN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
WASHINGTON—(NEA)—
President Johnson's decision not to activate any reserve units at this time may well have put Defense Secretary Robert McNamara on the spot with his controversial plan to merge the Army Reserves into the National Guard.

So long as a reserve call up was imminent, it seemed likely that McNamara's plan could be quietly shelved until some time next year, when the mood of Congress might be more receptive to the idea.

Currently, the deteriorating condition in Viet Nam is causing many legislators to have second thoughts about tinkering with the country's reserve military strength.

And just recently, the House of Representatives—by a whopping 410-0 vote—passed a military pay increase which gave servicemen an average raise of 10.7 per cent across the board. Since McNamara originally requested an average increase of only 4.5 per cent, the result was interpreted as a setback for the Defense boss.

For McNamara to attempt to push the reserves reorganization through Congress now strikes one legislative source as "fighting the wrong war at the wrong time."

Several key legislators have privately indicated their opposition to the merger. Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., acting chairman of both the Armed Services and Defense Appropriations Committees of the Senate, recently said that "the existing international situation is so tense as to make a merger in advisable at this time."

At a news conference shortly before Stennis' announcement, McNamara implied that he wanted to move ahead promptly with the merger, but he noted that "the action that will be taken will depend on further action by Congress."

Thus, Stennis' statement appeared to have given the Defense chief a tailor-made "out" for postponing the reorganization plan.

Although the President did not rule out future activation of the reserves, his decision not to do so now may have forced McNamara's hand. Rep. Edward Hebert, D-La., has announced that his House Armed Services subcommittee will hold hearings on the merger.

The chief problem with McNamara's program is that it merges the reserves into the National Guard. A reservist has a federal commitment, while a guardsman—unless his unit is federalized by the President—is called up by the governor of his state.

Presently there is no law which would require a reservist to join a National Guard unit. Thus, if a reservist's unit is abolished, technically his federal commitment would be considered finished.

Several congressmen have conducted informal polls of their constituents now in the reserves. These results have shown that as many as 75 per cent of the responding reservists would resign rather than join the National Guard.

The prospect of losing a good chunk of the nation's ready military backup potential simply because many men might not want to risk being recalled to active status is not an appealing one to many legislators.

Thus, as a practical matter, the coming months appear to be an awkward time for the merger.

Should Congress okay McNamara's program, it would probably also adopt legislation requiring reservists to finish out their federal commitment in the National Guard. But such a law would raise many legal and constitutional questions, the answering of which would be a lengthy, involved process at best.

In the past, the Army has stressed that many Reserve and Guard units are not scheduled for use under any standby war plan—a fact which makes the reorganization and merger necessary. The existence of unneeded, undermanned and under-equipped units wastes money and keeps resources from units which are needed in the war plans.

Present war plans call for use of eight "high priority" National Guard divisions and smaller units in time of a major limited war—as Viet Nam is fast becoming. In event of an all-out war, new divisions will be created from scratch.

There are now 15 other Guard divisions and six Reserve divisions, skeleton forces which have no part in the war plan.

Under McNamara's plan, the Army would drop some of these divisions, convert others to bri-

BRIDGE

By JACOBY & SON
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The recent death of Jerry Lewis of Dallas deprived bridge of one of its outstanding personalities. Jerry had been President of the American Contract Bridge League and even more than that he devoted tremendous energy to seeing that Dallas tournaments were successful and we of Dallas will miss him even more than the rest of the bridge world.

Jerry made Life Master some years ago when he and Jeff Glick of Miami won the open pairs at Memphis. Among the also rans in that event were Jacoby and son. Today's hand shows one of the hands that contributed to their victory.

Jerry sat West and decided to double the two club overall.

He opened the seven of diamonds. Jeff took South's jack with the queen and cashed the ace. A third spade was ruffed by Jeff who took his ace of diamonds and ace of hearts. Then came a key play by Jerry. He played his lowest heart to ask Jeff to shift to a third diamond.

Jeff obliged and at this point South made a very unfortunate play. Instead of discarding his last spade and holding his loss down to three he ruffed with the jack of clubs. Jerry oversaw and led his last spade which Jeff ruffed. Out came another diamond and Jerry was able to make a second club trick and set South an additional trick for a top score of plus 1100.

Sexual Revolution in Movies

Liz Taylor's Career Seen In Light of Moral History

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The career of Elizabeth Taylor provides a notable example of how attitudes toward sex in films have been revolutionized.

Twenty years ago at MGM she was playing a fresh-faced ingenue whose greatest concern was whether she would get a date for the prom.

Today in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" she portrays a forthright housewife who taunts her professor husband (Richard Burton) by bedding down with his university associates.

The most publicized star of the 1960s, Elizabeth Taylor, 33, represents the American films' newfound freedom in dealing with sex. In her most recent films — excluding "Cleopatra," which is the way she would like it — she has portrayed the mother of a love-child ("The Sandpiper"), an adulteress ("The V.I.P.'s") and a call girl ("Butterfield 8").

The latter performance drew her Hollywood's ultimate honor, the Academy Award.

Hollywood's sex revolution has been hailed by some critics as an overdue admission of reality. It has also been denounced by many as a danger to the American family and a long step down the road to decadence.

The man caught in the crossfire is Geoffrey Shurlock, 71, Liverpool-born administrator of the industry's production code.

He denies charges that movies are corrupting American morals.

"Eighty per cent of the changes in the moral aspects of films are due to changes in the country's morals," he argued.

"The movies are not about to set patterns for behavior. We merely reflect what is going on in the country. And attitudes toward such matters as sex have greatly changed since the war."

"The major change in films during recent years has been the treatment of sex, and I think it is a healthy one. Film makers are no longer treating sex as something terrifying and sinful, but as a subject for fun and satire."

"The code used to say that seduction could not be a subject for comedy. But then the Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedies proved that seduction — though she never was seduced — could be funny and inoffensive."

"Then 'Tom Jones' came along to set the pattern. When I read the script, I didn't see how we could ever pass it. But the film was done with such style and taste that we couldn't reject it."

Shurlock illustrated how the code follows public acceptance in matters of costume: "For years we banned bikinis from the screen. But they became so prevalent on the beaches that we allowed them. Now we're trying to hold the line against short bikinis. "When I speak before women audiences, they often ask me how far movies will go in undressing. I tell them, 'Just as far as you women strip.' If the topless bathing suit becomes accepted at the beaches, we'll show them on the screen."

"As of now, we are not permitting objectionable exposure on the screen. There may be nudity, but that doesn't necessarily mean nakedness. For instance, in 'The Collector' the girl (Samantha Eggar) strips to seduce her captor and try to win freedom. But the scene is done in good taste."

Shurlock replies: "The screen reflects the life of the people. Whatever is morally acceptable will be seen in films. Some people say we should teach. I don't think so. Movies are supposed to be entertaining, and I hope they go on being just that."

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Says Edith Head, Academy-winning designer: "Elizabeth Taylor typifies the complete, absolute, ultimate look of sex appeal, which is the style of the 1960s. Not only has the bosom been emphasized; it has been exposed. This is the furthest modern fashion has gone in exposure. What next? We'll either see space suits, with the entire body concealed, or revert to primitive dress with only a leaf here and there. Having seen a great many women in the altogether, I would prefer the space suit."

Miss Nancy Marie Glennon, daughter of Mrs. Lauretta Glennon of 52 Clifton Avenue, Kingston, wed Peter N. Coliukos Jr., Port Ewen, in a double ring wedding ceremony on Sunday Aug. 1, 1965. The wedding took place at 2 p. m. in the Church of the Presentation, Port Ewen. The Rev. John Murphy was the officiating clergyman.

Theodore Riccobono was organist and Angelo Corrado was soloist.

The bride's uncle and Godfather Peter Wisniewski Jr., gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of chantilly lace over silk taffeta accented with seed pearls. A veil of wide English illusion was shirred to a double double coronet of seed pearls and cut crystals. She carried a cascade of white carnations and lily-of-the-valley.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

Author of "Children Are People" and "Etiquette," etc.

GOING TO A PUBLIC PLACE? DON'T WEAR HAIR IN CURLERS

Q: Isn't it in very bad taste for young women to go about in public with their hair in curlers or rollers? One sees this so often today, and in my opinion it looks very sloppy and show an "I don't care - what - people think" attitude. What is your opinion on this?

A: I agree with you wholeheartedly. One should never go anywhere in public with hair done up in curlers unless they are so skillfully concealed with a scarf or hat as to be completely invisible.

"WITHIN THE RIBBON"

Q: I received an invitation to this morning's mail to my nephew's wedding. Enclosed with the invitation was a card reading, "Within the ribbon." I have never received anything like this before. Will you please tell me what it means?

A: It means that you are to be seated in one of the front pews which has been reserved for members of the family and intimate friends. Take the card with you to the church and give it to the usher who will escort you up the aisle to your place.

WHEN A BUSINESS WOMAN MARRIES

Q: I am a business woman and in a very short while will also be a married woman. Should I continue to call myself Miss in the office or should I change to my husband's name after I am married? Which is preferable and in better taste?

A: A woman who has established herself in business as Miss Blank seldom, if ever, changes to her husband's name after marriage. She continues to call herself Miss Blank in the office and Mrs. Jones in private life.

Details concerning the remarriage of a widow and divorcee are described in the Emily Post Institute booklet entitled "Second Marriage." To obtain a copy send 10 cents in coin and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Emily Post Institute, in care of The Freeman.

The Emily Post Institute cannot answer personal mail, but all questions of general interest are answered in this column.

Taxes, Taxes, Taxes, Taxes, Taxes (Oh, Hum)

If the item comes in a blue bottle, tax it—in a red bottle, don't tax it!

That's my opinion of last night's so-called "informative tax talk" given at the Governor Clinton Hotel by an authoritative state tax official.

The birth of a state-wide sales tax has produced an oversized infant with an oversized case of colic! It is making unpaid tax collectors of the merchants, hitting bookkeeping departments with a right to the jaw, and dubbing each housewife with the dubious title "Dick Tracy of the Supermarket Set."

And, despite all overtures to the contrary, it's the little guy who pays, pays, pays.

In 1774, the Townsend Acts were repealed to give the poor American colonists some relief but the tax on tea was retained partly to assist the financially embarrassed East India Tea Company and partly as a symbolic gesture intended to impress the new colonies that the government had a right to IMPOSE taxes upon them.

In 1965, a state-wide sales tax was passed partly to relieve the financially embarrassed state budgets and partly—to prove the government has a right to IMPOSE taxes upon us without a referendum!

How does this affect you, the housewife. The Department of Taxation and Finance has issued Booklet No. 2, "Questions and Answers for Consumers."

In the "Introduction," it states: "All food bought for home use is exempt from the tax . . . —DON'T BELIEVE IT!"

I have checked various supermarkets and smaller shops and discovered the following:

Anything which does not have a 70 per cent pure juice content is taxed. This includes such popular (and I might add more economical for many consumers) fruit drinks, nectars, punches, lemonades, Tang, Hawaiian punch, etc. These items have a juice content. These items are cheaper to buy than pure juices—so they are taxed.

One delicatessen spokesman told me: "If you buy a whole cooked ham, it's taxed. Have it sliced—it's not taxed!"

I asked "Mr. Tax Expert" the following question: "If a delicatessen owner sells barbecued chickens, her own prepared potato salads, macaroni salads, cole slaw, are these taxed? ANSWER: YES. These are catered foods. Anything sold in excess of $1 for consumption on or off the premises is taxed!"

The man lost me at this point. Somewhere along the line "eating delicatessen" has become a taxable item. Perhaps we had better substitute these items with a glass of brewer's yeast, tiger's milk, bone meal and ascorbic acid, all health foods, which ARE NOT taxed.

I can go along with taxation of candy, and many other non-food items, BUT SOAP AND TOILET PAPER! Does the government want us to believe that keeping clean is not essential? Is a paper product such as toilet paper, a non-essential? It would seem to me the Beatnik crowd has a hot, fast lobby in Albany.

Let's take a walk into the pharmacy. Do you have your two baskets with you—one for taxable items, the other for non-taxable? Good.

Witch Hazel is used by many women to remove cosmetics, freshen the skin, etc. If this is your case, you will pay a tax. But if you use Witch Hazel as a rubbing compound—guess what?—you don't pay the tax.

Dandruff shampoos are taxed. But walk over to the shelf, pick up a bottle of hair tonic for dandruff—guess what?—no tax. Do you have trouble with your feet? Buy a cushion shoe pad—tax. Buy corn plaster—not taxed.

You gals who have the time, money and patience to sit around in a beauty parlor will not be taxed. But the gal who buys her own soap and shampoos, does the work in her own house, she's taxed! You figure it out.

I have compiled the above information from local merchants. They, in turn, derived the information from official releases sent as a courtesy by the Department of Taxation and Finance.

The dividing line between taxable and non-taxable items used every day by the housewife and her family is not only confusing, it is ridiculous.

On Monday, I will sum up the situation as seen through the eyes of a consumer. The title: "More Pitfalls for the Nervous Housewife."

Pageant Winner Not Involved in New York Dispute

Officials of the Miss New York Pageant, held in Kingston, has been receiving calls asking if the Miss New York State title controversy currently going on in New York City involves Miss Marlene Butcher named here early in July.

An inquiry about this controversy caused Albert Kurdt, manager of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, who served as executive director of the 1965 Miss New York Pageant, to give the following explanation:

"There are numerous beauty contests, mostly following the format developed by the Miss America Pageant. Several of them have an international flavor. There is only one Miss America Pageant, which issues exclusive franchises, one to each of the 50 states. These are the only contests which can be advertised and conducted as official Miss America Preliminaries. Pageant Inc., a Kingston non-profit membership corporation, held this exclusive franchise for the State of New York for the past seven years.

"Several years ago the Miss America Pageant had awarded franchises to several large cities, including New York. At the time New York State would send two contestants to Atlantic City. This made it necessary to use the title Miss New York State for the upstate representative. The policy was changed in 1963 and the Kingston group now selects one contestant to represent the entire State, including New York City, with the title Miss New York. The Miss New York State controversy involves a contest affiliated with one of the international contests and not the Miss America program."

Kurdt also said that some of the confusion is caused by the fact that New York is the only state which includes a major city by the same name. For the sake of being consistent, the Miss America program has dropped the word State from all the 50 state titles. Miss Marlene Butcher chosen here in July as Miss New York, won over the 26 contestants sent here by groups holding territory franchise contracts issued by Pageant Inc. of Kingston. This included a representative from New York City under the title of Miss Manhattan.

OTTO ZOEHRER RESIDENCE

GENERAL HASBROUCK HOUSE

New and Old Houses to Be Part of Stone Ridge Tour

Two outstanding homes in the Stone Ridge area to be included in this year's Dutch Day House Tour August 14 are the General Sherman V. Hasbrouck and the Otto Zoehrer residences.

The tours will start from the Marletown Reformed Church 11 a. m. to 4 p. m. Luncheon will be available there from 11:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m.

The home of Gen. and Mrs. Hasbrouck is a reproduction of an early colonial stone house of the more elegant variety. Many traditions of the early builders were followed, not only in the lines of the house and the materials used, but in that of the pine and oak for the beams, woodwork, paneling, and wide board floors, and the black walnut of the beautiful stair rail and treads were cut on this property or nearby in Stone Ridge. Here are not only many beautiful American and English antiques but an assortment of furniture, rugs, and bibelots collected by the Hasbroucks.

Nearby on Buck Road is another stone house, this one probably built in the 1700's for the Dutch family of Jacobus Vandemark, as the cornerstone of the second and larger addition bears the inscription "Jacob S. Vandemark 1810." This house has been pictured in many publications, noting especially its original fireplace with beehive oven, its fine example of a Colonial stairway, heavy beamed ceilings and hand forged hardware. This is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Zoehrer. Mr. Zoehrer is an artist, and his artist's love for the hand-wrought is apparent in the restoration of the house, most of which he has done himself.

Furniture Styles Featured
Besides many Colonial antiques, such as the Astley Cooper disciplinary chair, the Zoehrs have a fascinating collection of Dutch, Italian, French gothic and English Jacobean oak furniture. Paintings, tapestries will be available here, served by Mrs. Richard Davenport assisted by Mrs. Thomas Godney, in the old cellar which was used long ago by the slaves for cooking, but which will be a cool spot for a quick rest on a summer's day.

Other houses on the tour include those of Mrs. Cornelius Hardenbergh, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Embree Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hansen.

lected by the Hasbroucks on their travels around the world, especially the Orient.

One of Mrs. Hasbrouck's hobbies is cooking, and of special interest is her kitchen which combines the old, such as a Franklin stove and a marble-top table for chopping, with the latest in modern day kitchen equipment. Not to be overlooked here are the gardens, steps built around an old millstone leading up to a grass terrace, rose and herb gardens, and spacious lawns with sweeping evergreen and perennial borders—all laid out and cared for by the Hasbroucks themselves.

Nearby on Buck Road is another stone house, this one probably built in the 1700's for the Dutch family of Jacobus Vandemark, as the cornerstone of the second and larger addition bears the inscription "Jacob S. Vandemark 1810." This house has been pictured in many publications, noting especially its original fireplace with beehive oven, its fine example of a Colonial stairway, heavy beamed ceilings and hand forged hardware. This is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Zoehrer. Mr. Zoehrer is an artist, and his artist's love for the hand-wrought is apparent in the restoration of the house, most of which he has done himself.

Furniture Styles Featured
Besides many Colonial antiques, such as the Astley Cooper disciplinary chair, the Zoehrs have a fascinating collection of Dutch, Italian, French gothic and English Jacobean oak furniture. Paintings, tapestries will be available here, served by Mrs. Richard Davenport assisted by Mrs. Thomas Godney, in the old cellar which was used long ago by the slaves for cooking, but which will be a cool spot for a quick rest on a summer's day.

Other houses on the tour include those of Mrs. Cornelius Hardenbergh, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Embree Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hansen.

Catholic Camp Starts Final Session

Monday Catholic Day Camp in Lake Katrine starts its final two weeks after a very busy season.

Many of the children learned and advanced in swimming skills and were awarded graded badges under the guidance of certified Red Cross instructors.

There was much interest in the weekly over-nights where the boys and girls, each on their respective nights, enjoyed the campfire, sings and snacks. Another popular activity was the competitive games played with the other camp teams. The children also enjoyed inter-camp competition with the winning team each week awarded a "treat" on Friday.

Camp directors announce there are still a few places available for new campers to join the group either this week or next and finish off the season with them. Interested parents may get further information by calling the camp between 9 and 3 Monday through Friday. John Smith of Town of Ulster is director.

Appraisal Made of Bombing Results in North Viet Nam

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam are still far from achieving their aims after six months of virtual round-the-clock action, according to the best available assessments.

"We'll need to drop a lot more bombs, and we'll have to use increasing numbers of aircraft to get anywhere," one highly qualified source said.

50 U.S. Aircraft Lost
U.S. Air Force and Navy planes have dropped an estimated 10,000 tons of bombs on North Viet Nam targets. About 50 U.S. aircraft have been lost.

The continuous strikes began Feb. 7.

U.S. planes first began hammering Communist installations with two goals in mind.

One was to cut the supply lines to Viet Cong troops in South Viet Nam. This included bombing of supply lines in eastern Laos with the permission of the Laotian government.

The second goal was to force the North Vietnamese regime to the conference table.

Qualified sources doubt that Viet Cong supply lines have been hurt badly.

"We have smashed their bridges, clogged their roads and sunk their barges, but none of us seriously believe that the supply effort has been hurt," a U.S. official said. "They have proved very resourceful."

Supplies Continue
"Supplies still come through Laos down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and we can do nothing about it short of bombing acres of jungle. And the Viet Cong come in along the coast and through Cambodia almost unmolested."

There is also no sign that the goal of bringing the Communists to the conference table is any closer to achievement. The Communists have spurned U.S. offers of negotiation and overtures from other nations and U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

Saugerties Plans

over to Town Attorney Louis P. Francello for investigation.

A traffic problem at Fullers Corners, Glasco, was reported to the board. Complaints of speeding and disregard for a full stop sign at that intersection were reported. Special town police will be advised and the board will again write to the State Traffic and Control Commission seeking installation of a signal light and a speed zone in that area.

Councilman Frank Greco advised of a similar situation at Mt. Marion Four Corners and asked that the problem be included in the letter.

Few Welfare Cases
The board filed applications for welfare officer without action due to the small number of cases in the township. Supervisor Williams advised that the county handles the few cases the township has for investigation.

The board accepted a dedication deed to all of Sterling Avenue North in Dutch Settlement, Barclay Heights. The deed was presented by Austin P. Simmons through his attorneys.

A letter from Centerville Fire Company asked for an increase in the payment for rental space in the fire hall for election purposes. The fee is $50 in the current budget. The board will advise the company that the matter will be reviewed in the next budget determinations.

Republican election inspectors were approved.

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The Washoe County sheriff's office will soon increase its staff by one man. But the new deputy won't answer the usual accident and crime calls.

Instead, he will be a one-man agency to catch persons who dump trash where garbage is not authorized.

County commissioners approved hiring the special deputy as part of a program to enforce a trash ordinance. They also approved a minimum fine of $100 for illegal dumping of trash or garbage.

TV Reviews, Best Bets

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — In strict theatrical terms, a performer is the star of a show when his name appears in the billing over the title of the vehicle.

This limited definition has been broadened considerably by motion pictures and, particularly, television.

Today a television star is anyone — even an unknown — cast in a regular, leading role in a series. Or it may be a guest star, a performer with or without name value brought in to play a leading role in a single episode. And there are many types of special billing, like "special guest star," and "also starring," which more than anything else reflect the ingenuity and persuasiveness of the performer's agent.

Despite the loose application of the glamorous word, television does award real star status to a few, whose names are the titles of the shows: Andy Williams, Andy Griffith, Danny Kaye, Red Skelton, Patty Duke, Ed Sullivan, Donna Reed, Dick Van Dyke, Jimmy Dean, Jackie Gleason and Lucille Ball.

During the new season there will be a few additions — Dean Martin, the Smothers Brothers, Steve Lawrence and John Forsythe.

The last named wound up as title star of "The John Forsythe Show," one of NBC's 10 new comedy series, largely because the producers were stuck for a suitable name. The responsibility seems to make him a little nervous.

"We originally had a dandy, 'The Major and the Minors,' Forsythe said almost apologetically. 'But we dropped that when we found the people who owned an old movie called 'The Major and the Minor' wanted a lot of money to use it.'"

Forsythe, who played the title role in "Bachelor Father," for five television seasons and is still seen in its reruns all over the place, is as pleased with his new professional 'family' as she was with the other one. Among the regulars are Elsa Lanchester and Ann B. Davis, who played a character named "Schultz" in a Bob Cummings series for so long.

It is very important to a series that the cast get along well together," said Forsythe soberly as he sits at his co-owner of the show.

The trade publication Variety, which keeps charts of such things, finds that eight shows have changed producers this summer, often a signal of program trouble. Most recent departure has been the producer of the new "Dean Martin Show," Bill Colleran, who said his approach to the show differed from the network's ideas.

Other new programs suffering recent producer changes include the Smothers Brothers' show, "A Man Called Shenandoah," "The Wild, Wild West," and "O.K. Crackerby."

Hiroshima Marks That 1945 Day

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — Agitators from outside were pushed into the background today as Hiroshima marked the 20th anniversary of the city's atomic bombing.

The prosperous, reconstructed city of 520,000 came to a standstill for one minute at 8:15 a.m. to mark the moment a U.S. Air Force B29 on Aug. 6, 1945, dropped the world's first nuclear bomb on human beings.

Sirens, gongs and church bells went off.

More than 30,000 persons attended a service at Peace Memorial Park. Typhoon Jean's rain held off until after the ceremony.

The ceremony had none of the political trappings of two ban-the-bomb conferences now meeting here and attended mostly by people from other cities. One is the Communist-organized 11th World Conference Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs. The other is sponsored by Japanese Socialists.

Arrest Over Refuse

Robert M. Gorsline, 26, of 58 Fair Street, was booked on a disorderly conduct charge Thursday afternoon, after a reported dispute over dumping regulations at the city's Kingston Point refuse disposal area. The charge was lodged by Officer Edward Ortlieb and it is alleged that the disposal area after the 3 p.m. time limit, had refused to leave when told to do so. Attorney S. James Matthews appeared with him in city court today and hearing was put over to Aug. 21.

Reports Attack by Two

Local police were notified shortly after midnight that George Andrews, of 37 Wall Street, had been attacked by "two young men" as he got out of his car at home. He suffered a head injury, the report said, but nothing was reported stolen.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — In an attempt to bolster attendance, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church has scheduled its Sunday school on Wednesdays, starting in September.

"We've become a city of boat owners," says the Rev. William Neff Jr. "With every new lake, more people are spending the weekends out of town."

Two Drivers Fined

Two drivers were fined $5 each in city court today. Joseph Russell, 61, of 38 Jane Street, Saugerties, was charged with a stop-sign violation, and Francis Nadschal, 20, of 103 Dunsmuir Avenue, with passing a red traffic signal.

Board to Discuss Lehmann Claim About Water Loss

A claim by Alfred F. Lehmann, of 22 O'Neil Street, that Kingston is losing water because of a leak at the equalizing reservoir in the Sawkill area, also known as the Binnewater, is expected to be discussed at an Aug. 12 water board meeting.

It was learned today, however, that the condition mentioned by Lehmann dealing with a cut along the Kingston (Route 209) Bypass north of the Thruway interchange has been investigated and it was found that the water there is from ground seepage and not from the reservoir.

The rest of the stock market was doing very little. Prewreck and caution prevailed and traders were getting squared away so that they would not be too much extended should the next two days bring drastic change in the news background.

With changes of most key stocks fractional, there was a slightly higher trend among tobacco, airlines, rubbers and drugs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon rose 3 to 328.2 with industrials up 1, rails unchanged and utilities up 5.

The Dow Jones industrial average at noon was off .21 at 331.42.

Schools to Offer Four Classes in Elementary Work

With approval of the State Education Department, the Kingston City Schools Consolidated will conduct four classes at the elementary level for residents who have not completed eighth grade work or who do not have eighth grade reading, writing and arithmetic ability.

It is hoped classes will start in September.

The State Education Department, said a meeting of June of some 25 citizens from all walks of life, gave approval to the local school district to conduct classes in the three rudiments — reading, writing and arithmetic.

The program is made possible under the provisions of the President's Economic Opportunity Act, which provides funds to conduct classes at elementary school level.

Donald E. Sweeney, co-ordinator of the Adult Basic Education Program, said today four classes will be formed on four levels as needed—first and second, third and fourth, fifth and sixth, seventh and eighth. Each class is entitled to 200 hours of instruction.

Sweeney said a minimum of six hours a week must be devoted to class work and classes may be held during the day or evening. Classes may be held in any of the schools within the consolidated school district or any other available facility that is convenient to the participants.

According to Sweeney, it is necessary that each class have a minimum of 10 and a maximum of 20 persons. Several book publishers have prepared books for use by the classes.

Dr. W. Wendell Hoover, superintendent of schools said at a June meeting of local citizens, that schools have maintained Adult Education Programs, but this is the first time that there has been a concerted effort to conduct classes at the elementary school level in the basic subjects — reading, writing and arithmetic.

Elementary school certificates will be awarded to those who complete the eighth grade course and the person may go on to complete a high school course.

For those who register for the work, there will be a routine test to establish on what level they should enter the course.

In the State of New York there are two million persons over the age of 25 without an eighth grade education. It is estimated that there are 4500 individuals in the city of Kingston alone over the age of 25 who do not have an eighth grade education. School officials say it has been proven that improvement in the ability to read can result in better employment and better home and family relationship.

Sweeney said an appeal has been made again to employers, churches, community groups and interested citizens to bring the program to the attention of those who could benefit by participating in the courses and urge them to participate in the courses which now become available through the Economic Opportunity Act.

Applications will be received at the John F. Kennedy School, Gross Street, city.

School officials hope that the first four classes will be started no later than early September, but additional classes will be added as enrollment.

Registration is urged as soon as possible so that the program may be set up and arrangements made for participation under the President's Economic Opportunity Act.

Medicare, Social Security

Supplemental Insurance Can Be Bought Through Government

By JOHN TROAN
NEA Special Writer

Besides the basic health benefits provided by Social Security, persons past 65 will be able to buy supplemental insurance through the government to help with other medical bills. Such insurance, effective July 1, 1966, will cover:

Doctor Bills — House calls by physicians, office visits, and services rendered in a hospital, nursing home or other institution.

However, routine physicals won't be covered. Neither will vaccine shots, nor exams for eye-glasses or hearing aids. (But diagnosis and treatment of eye and ear ailments will be included.)

Plastic surgery will be excluded if done purely for cosmetic reasons. But if it's "required for the prompt repair of accidental injury," or to fix an impaired limb or other malformed part of the body, the surgery will be covered.

Dental Care — Services of dentists for jaw or other facial-bone surgery required by accident or disease (but not ordinary dental treatment).

Psychiatric Care — If a patient is treated outside a hospital for a "mental," "syndrome," or "personality disorder," the insurance will cover half of the bill—up to a total of $250 a year.

Home Visits — Up to 100 visits a year to a patient's home by part-time nurses, nurse's aides, medical social workers, and physical, occupational and speech therapists.

Under the basic Social Security Medicare plan, such visits will be covered only if the patient is hospitalized first. The supplemental insurance will provide such care even if the patient hasn't had prior hospital treatment. Or it can be used to get 100 visits in addition to the 100 offered by the basic Medicare program.

To obtain such benefits, the home care must be spelled out in a plan drawn by the patient's doctor. He also must certify that the patient is confined to his home and needs either "skilled nursing care" or physical therapy or speech therapy (in which event, the other home benefits also will be available).

Other Medical Services:

• Diagnostic tests, including X-ray and laboratory tests, performed in a legally approved lab or in one operated by a physician or hospital.

• Radioactive therapy (treatment with X-rays, radium or radioactive isotopes).

• Surgical dressings, splints, casts and other "devices" used to fix fractures and dislocations.

• Rental of "durable" medical equipment (including iron lungs, oxygen tents, hospital beds and wheelchairs).

• Ambulance service to the nearest hospital if ordinary transportation would endanger the patient.

• Artificial limbs, artificial eyes, and braces (but not orthopedic shoes).

• Other prostheses (such as

To Exchange Tapes
In Education Link

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) —An exchange of taped programs this fall among the state's three educational television stations will establish the first link in the planned $11.8 million educational television network.

Robert E. Thomas, an assistant to Dr. Samuel Gould, president of the State University, said the exchange would begin this October.

Within 10 years, the three existing stations and those to be built would be linked by a two-way microwave signal, permitting simultaneous broadcasts across the state.

"Defensive Driving," a lesson underscoring courtesy on the highways and the endeavor to think for the other driver, was the subject of a film presentation to the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday.

Sponsored by the Bell System, New York Telephone Company, and presented by Stanley Han-kinson, the film emphasized the telephone company's classes for driving for its employees and the idea of not only paying attention to one's own habits but endeavoring to anticipate the habits of the other drivers.

Tragedy on the highways was shown in the film, with the death of two people in a family of four, caused by the thoughtless driver who was unwilling to extend common courtesy to other drivers.

and in the Reformed Church at 11 a. m. The Rev. Mr. Lokhorst will deliver the sermons. Special music will be provided each Sunday throughout the summer. A nursery will be available all summer in the church basement.

Tuesday, the Dorcas Society will meet at 8 p. m. in the church hall. Thursday, the consistory will meet 7:30 p. m. in the Fellowship Room of the church.

The recent furore over the lack of adequate recreational and park facilities in the City of Kingston was not the surprising revelation some persons were led to believe. It was strictly old hat.

More than two years ago, this department conducted an evaluation of the recreational facilities of Kingston, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie. And Kingston came out a very poor last.

The newly announced plans of the United States postal department to take over the Athletic Field for a new post office is just another step in a long, steady decline in our recreational facilities and official attitudes toward the decaying process.

The fact that Kingston has fallen far behind its sister cities of Newburgh and Poughkeepsie is not the fault of any single administration. All the administrations of the past—Republican and Democratic alike—must share the blame. It isn't something that happened overnight. It has been a long time developing.

• Needed a Recreation Commission:

We reiterate what we said two years ago: so long as the recreation department in Kingston remains a subsidiary and stepchild of the Board of Public Works there is no hope for the future. We advocated the appointment of a Recreation Commission apart from the BPW and with power to make budgetary recommendations to the mayor. The charter revision group went a step in that direction but not far enough.

Charter revision was defeated for reasons other than the small section that gave rise to some hope for better recreational facilities for our town. But until there is absolute divorce of the recreational setup from the Board of Public Works, we will continue to perpetuate a sham. What is urgently needed is a Recreation Commission made up of knowledgeable, public spirited citizens with the authority to conduct a survey of our present setup, expose its glaring weaknesses and make recommendations to bring the program into the 20th century.

It is ironical that a city that takes pride in many visible signs of progress and achievement—new buildings, huge shopping centers, new arterial routes and urban renewal—can remain so remotely aloof and indifferent to the crucial need for a more extensive and enlightened recreational and park program for the City of Kingston—for youngsters and oldies alike.

This would cost money, of course, and politicians are historically opposed to recommending projects that would add to the taxload. It is a theory of survival shared by many politicians. But the last time we looked the tax rate was pretty substantial and the recreational facilities still pretty shabby. So, who's getting short-changed?

• Let the Gentlemen Speak:

Two brand new faces—Ray Garraghan and Al Kurd—will vie for the mayoralty mantle in November. They are both intelligent, knowledgeable and know Kingston and its needs and problems as well as any two men who ever sought the office of mayor. We will be looking forward to their statements on the subject of parks and recreation as the 1965 campaign heats up.

MacLeod Scores 13th Straight Win

Billy MacLeod won his 13th Eastern League game of the season without a loss Wednesday night, as he gave up only one hit as the Pittsburgh Red Sox defeated the Springfield Giants 9-0.

Springfield's loss enabled the surging York White Roses to pull into a tie with the Giants for fourth place. York defeated Reading 4-3 for the White Roses' 14th victory in their last 16 games.

League leading Elmira defeated Williamsport 7-2 in the league's other game.

The only hit off MacLeod was Jim McLain's double off the wall in the fifth inning. MacLeod had retired the first 13 batters. He gave up two walks in the fifth inning, but got out of the inning by striking out opposing pitcher Matt Gayeski. MacLeod retired the last 13 batters.

Chris Coletta drove in three runs with a single and a double. A wild pitch by relief pitcher Steve Bailey let in what proved to be the winning run in York's victory. With the bases loaded in the top of the eighth, and York ahead 3-1, Bailey let a pitch to Jim French get away and Jim Snyder scored. The run was vital for York as the Indians came back with two runs in the bottom of the eighth.

Howie Bedell had a home run for York. It was his fourth. The winner was Dave Stenhouse. Bill Dillman struck out seven as he gave up only three hits as Elmira turned back Williamsport. It was his third victory without a loss.

Area Scholastic Star, Collegians On Hill City Nine

The Newburgh Rookie League All Stars will throw a bevy of former high school and college stars against the Kingston Braves in Saturday night's baseball headliner at Dietz Stadium. Game time is 8:15 p. m.

Manager Dick Bartsch has his choice between Brian Bach and Wayne Johnson and each faces a formidable challenge from Manager Sal Ciacco's all-star array.

Ciacco has five high school pitching aces at his command and the starting nod is likely to go to Bill Barnes, hard-throwing 6 foot 2, 180-pound Middletown High pitcher.

In addition to Barnes, the All-stars have Joel Conley, Cornwall Central High; Charlie Delmonico, Valley Central; Jim Conklin, Tuxedo High; Herb Hartman of Washingtonville; and Pete Petrillo, who also played first base for Newburgh Academy's DUSO champions.

Warneke on Squad
Other stickouts with the Newburgh squad are Fran Warneke, a first baseman who was DUSO Player of the Year at Middletown High; Steve Aurigemma, second baseman, who was in the Cincinnati farm system and Chuck Tudor, former All-DUSO second baseman with Newburgh Academy.

John Schoenberger, who was rated a major league prospect at Manhattan College, is among the Newburgh outfielders. He played in the Baltimore Orioles farm system. Other outfielders include Mickey Amick, Boston College soph; Walt Beebe, Minisink High; Vince Decerbo and Vince Monaco, Orange Community; Ben Trapani, Jerry Williams and Mark Wilson.

Two catchers with college experience are available to Manager Ciacco. They are Jack Glassey of Florida Southern and Ken Berto of Rider College. Lou Arrotta, NFA 1955, and Marsh Canosa, Marlboro Central senior.

Yale Sophomore
Rodger Chase, Yale University sophomore, is available for first base and John Wood of Cornwall Central is a second baseman. John Conklin, OCC, or Sal Craciolo, NFA, are the shortstops. Additional outfielders include Jerry Williams, NFA, and Mark Wilson of Wanglers.

Over the hump with a 3-2 record, the Braves faced rugged opposition in quest of their fourth win. The All Stars competed in the recent Bronx Sandlotters Association Senior Invitational tournament and were beaten in the semi-finals, 7-4, by Clifton, N. J.

Sikes Hits 8-Under 64 In Philly

WHITEMARSH, Pa. (AP) — Dick Sikes, generally acknowledged as pro golf's 1964 Rookie of the Year, rode a hot putter to an 8-under-par 64 Thursday for the first round lead in the $125,000 Philadelphia Golf Classic.

The two-time former U. S. Public Links and NCAA champion, took a two stroke lead over Bruce Devlin and Bob Charles, emerging from a four-month slump. Each carded four-under-par 68's.

Sikes, 25, used only 24 putts as he missed by one stroke the Whitmarsh Valley Country Club course record of 63 set two years ago in the Pro-Am Tourney by Gary Player.

Sikes fired eight birdies in his sensational first round of the 72-hole event.

Sikes had rounds of 32-32, dropping birdie putts of 8, 15 and 12 feet on the front nine. He just lipped the cup on Nos. 6 and 8, setting for pars. On the back nine, the tall 158 pounder included putts of 20 and 25 feet as he carded four more birds.

Devlin, from Australia, and Charles, of New Zealand, each shot 34-34—68 over the par 36-36—72 Whitmarsh course for a one-stroke lead over six deadlocked at 69.

The 27-year-old Devlin has experienced a rewarding year from a monetary standpoint — he is the tour's fifth leading money winner. But it's been a frustrating period from a golf standpoint — he hasn't won a tournament.

Charles won the Tucson Open in February and hasn't visited the winner's circle since then.

Charles helped his cause with a 145-yard eight iron on the par four, 375-yard sixth, which hit the flagstick and plunked down into the cup.

Devlin has earned his money in 1963 with four seconds and a third. In each of the four seconds he missed pressure putts that would have sent him into at least a playoff for the top spot.

Oliver Sees Sandy Laughing His Way to 30-Game Season

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Sports Writer
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers is likely to laugh his way to a 30-game season this year, says Gene Oliver of the Milwaukee Braves.

"It has got to be fun for him to pitch," said an appreciative Oliver Thursday night after Koufax had beaten the Braves 6-3 for his 19th victory against the Braves.

"He's got such great stuff, he can laugh the whole game," continued Oliver, who collected three of the seven hits the star southpaw allowed.

Oliver said Koufax has an excellent chance of becoming the first National League pitcher to win 30 games since Dizzy Dean accomplished the feat in 1934.

"Having 19 wins this early in August is like hitting 450 in August. I say with an average like that you'd have a heck of a chance to hit 400," Oliver said.

Koufax, the picture of intensity as he stares in at a batter, denied he was a laughing boy on the mound.

City Softball League

G-G's Clinches Tie, Nips Johnny's, 3-1

G-G's Dukes clinched a tie for the City Softball league title last night, scoring two runs in the seventh inning to nip Johnny's Shell, 3-1, at Upper Hasbrouck Park.

Locked in a 1-1 deadlock starting the seventh, the league leaders clinched the win when Vince Smedes beat out a bunt, Bill Murphy followed with another bunt single. Smedes scored on an error and Murphy tallied on a sacrifice fly.

Riot Aftermath; More Boxing Set For the Garden

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing in New York was hanging on the ropes today as the result of the Wednesday night riot in Madison Square Garden.

Nevertheless Harry Markson, the veteran director of boxing for the Garden, hoped to rally the hardy old sport with a series of shows for the summer and fall.

On his planning board is a local show, possibly featuring light heavyweights Jimmy Durree and Johnny Persol, for Aug. 24, a middleweight title fight between champion Joey Giardello and ex-champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria in October, and the fall doubleheader heavy-weight title match between Casius Clay and Floyd Patterson and Ernie Terrell and George Chuvalo.

The heavies, if Markson can get Clay and his Louisville sponsoring group to agree, could restore boxing to glowing health, Markson believes.

"Clay, of course, is the key," said Markson. "If we can get him everything else will fall in place."

The 40-year-old Garden, scheduled for demolition in a few years, almost got taken apart by rioting fans Wednesday after Filipino Flash Elorde was awarded a disputed split 10-round decision over Puerto Rican-born Frankie Narvaez.

Workmen labored Thursday to clear the debris and repair the damage to seats and fixtures. Rows of seats had been yanked out and smashed to bits. Metal railings had been forced apart and pipe lengths were tossed onto the ring floor.

The organ, toppled over by a railing to the floor five feet below, was sent out for repairs. "The fans got a little exuberant," said Markson. "It was a flash thing — a couple of people went haywire."

Johnny's got its run in the second inning off George Norton with Jim Amato doubling and then denting home plate.

G-G's knotted the count in the third and then the teams tied when to play shutout ball until the winning rally in the seventh.

Norton walked two and fanned four while giving four hits. Loser Al Milak was touched for seven safeties. He walked a pair and struck out five.

The Dukes can clinch the championship by beating Johnny's Monday at Loughran Park. If G-G's bows and if Armstrong's Eagles beat the Minute Car Wash Tuesday at Block Park, the teams will finish in a tie and will meet on Wednesday in a sudden death playoff.

Favorites Axed In Canada Golf

KITCHENER, Ont. (AP) — The wave of upsets that eliminated all United States entries on Wednesday continued in the Canadian Womens Open golf championship Thursday as all favorites were beaten.

The surprises included Mary Gay's 1-up victory over Marlene Stewart Streit, Miss Gay's defeat by Joann Riddell 2-up, Carolyn McLure's 2 and 1 triumph over Sandra Post and Jocelyn Bourassa's 2 and 1 victory over Gail Harvey.

Talbot Has Tenth Win

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Fred Talbot, the young Kansas City right-hander, became the Athletics' first 10-game winner Thursday night when he limited Boston to six hits and got last out help from John Wyatt for a 5-1 victory over the Red Sox.

The American League's 10-game club is not a terribly exclusive place these days with 15 other pitchers joining the ranks before Talbot made it. But none of the other members toils for the last place Athletics, who've managed just 35 victories all season.

Talbot was passed on to Kansas City in the aftermath of the complicated three-cornered trade and has a 10-6 record and 3.48 earned run average for 140 innings. The 24-year-old pitcher has become the top pitcher on the Athletics staff.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota lengthened its lead to 5½ games over idle Baltimore by whipping Washington 8-5. New York blanked Chicago 3-0 behind Whitey Ford's five-hitter and Cleveland defeated Detroit 5-2 for Sam McDowell's 12th victory.

Talbot had allowed only one hit after the third inning and had two out in the ninth when he ran into trouble. Singles by Jim Gosger and Russ Nixon brought Wyatt out of the bullpen.

After a walk to pinch hitter Tony Horton loaded the bases, Wyatt retired Eddie Bressoud on a foul pop, ending it.

Bill Bryan knocked in two runs for the A's and Talbot also drove in one with an eighth inning single.

Joe Nosske and Zoilo Versalles provided the home run punch for Minnesota against Washington. Nosske's three-run shot built a five-run Twin lead in the third inning and Jim Kaat coasted to his 10th victory. Relief ace Johnny Klippstein finished up.

It was Ford's kind of day in Chicago — 92 degrees worth — and the Yankee southpaw responded with his 13th victory. Whitey, who has trouble on cool days because the operation on his left shoulder last winter left him with a circulation problem in his pitching hand, was in charge all the way.

Ford's batterymate, Elston Howard, whacked a two-run homer.

McDowell ran his American League-leading streakout total to 211, fanning 10 Tigers. It was the 12th time in 23 starts this season that the left-hander has struck out 10 or more batters in a game.

Leon Wagner and Rocky Colavito drove in two runs apiece for the Indians with Wagner stroking his 19th homer of the season.

Pro Grid Teams To Make Debuts

Professional football's exhibition season moves into high gear this weekend with tonight's Cleveland Browns-College All-Star game in Chicago topping the five-game schedule.

On Saturday afternoon, the Washington Redskins meet the Philadelphia Eagles in a National League exhibition at Hershey, Pa.

The American League swings into action Saturday night with the New York Jets and Houston Oilers meeting at Alexandria, Va., and Kansas City playing at Denver.

On Sunday, it will be Buffalo at Boston in another AFL match.

Tonight's All-Star game, Saturday's Eagle-Redskin game and Sunday's Bills-Patriot clash will be on network television, with CBS screening the NFL game, NBC covering the AFL match and ABC the All-Star contest.

Brady-Landesman Scotch Winners

Mrs. Joseph Brady and Mrs. Arthur Landesman combined for a net 73 to capture first place in the Wiltwyck Country Club women's Scotch foursome with selected drives. They posted 57-49—106 gross and had 33 strokes handicap allowance.

One stroke off the pace were Mrs. Gerald Overbargh and Mrs. Robert C. Merritt with 93-19—74.

Other winners included: Mrs. Richard Stewart and Mrs. Howard DeWitt, 95-19—78; Mrs. Brady and Mrs. Wilson Brooks, 106-30—76; Mrs. Arthur London, Mrs. Arnold Pinsky, 111-35—76; Mrs. Werner Kolln and Mrs. Charles Ronder, 105-28—77.

Aces on Parade

Mays and Koufax Stage Two Glittering Shows

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Willie Mays and Sandy Koufax, performing on separate stages, on typically glittering shows Thursday night.

Mays clouted two homers and drove in four runs as San Francisco annihilated Cincinnati 18-7 while Koufax picked up his 19th victory in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 6-3 triumph over Milwaukee.

Mays came to bat for the first time minutes after teammate Jim Davenport won $50 in a pre-game milking competition. Two men were on base, and the Giant slugger promptly connected for his 26th home run. He batted again in the second inning and this time unloaded his 27th.

In his act, Koufax scattered seven hits, struck out 12 and walked two. The victory set the stage for the 29-year-old southpaw to become the season's first 20-game winner early next week.

Ahead of Best Pace

Koufax is ahead of the pace he set in his two previous best seasons. In 1963, en route to 25 victories, he won his 19th game Aug. 17 and his 20th 12 days later. Last year he picked up No. 19 on Aug. 16 but never had a chance for the 20th. An elbow injury took care of that.

He also is maintaining a pace that would make him the one-season streakout king in modern times. Total of 253 is only 95 away from Bob Feller's record of 348. His average of 10 strikeouts a game could give him the record in 10 more starts.

Besides his strikeout total, Koufax — a four-game loser — is maintaining a brilliant walking mark. In 222 innings, he has walked only 44, or slightly less than two a game.

In other National League games, Philadelphia edged Chicago 4-3, Pittsburgh bombed New York 11-3 and St. Louis stopped Houston 3-1.

Two of the Braves' hits off Koufax were Joe Torre's second-inning homer and Mack Jones' two-run blast in the ninth. Jim Lefebvre drove in three Dodger runs, two on a third-inning homer, but base-stealing ace Maury Wills was picked off for the third time in three games.

Gabrielson Stars

Mays was joined in the Giants' 19-hit attack by Len Gabrielson, who rapped four hits and drove in four runs, and Jesus Alou, who had four hits and batted in three runs. Gordy Coleman homered twice for the Reds while Deron Johnson and Pete Rose each connected once.

Philadelphia nipped the Cubs on Rich Allen's two-run triple in the fifth inning. Allen also singled and scored on Adolfo Phillips' single in the fourth. Relief pitchers Gary Wagner and Bo Belinsky snuffed out Chicago threats in the eighth and ninth innings.

League-leading Roberto Clemente raised his average to .345 with a single, double and home run while pitcher Don Cardwell added a three-run homer to Pittsburgh's attack. Cardwell brought his record to 10-5 as the Pirates won their fifth straight game.

Bob Gibson picked up his 14th triumph against eight defeats with a four-hitter against the Astros. Tim McCarver drove in the first two St. Louis runs with a sacrifice fly and an infield out.

The 8-year-old gelding has earned $59,250 this season, while lifetime earnings total $321,981. In other races:
— At Buffalo Raceway, Crockett won the $13,906 Reynolds States when the two favorites, All Affame and Egyptian Candor, broke. The 3-year-old colt covered the distance in 2:04 3-5, registering a 2-length victory over Egyptian Candor, second, and Suspension, third. The winner paid $10.
— At Vernon Downs, Bric-a-Brac won the $2,000 pace in 2:00 3-5 and paid $2.20. Five lengths behind at the finish was Good Knight, second, and Fast Step, third.
— At Saratoga, Mr. Time won the $2,000 non-betting pace in 2:07 3-5. Chester Lady placed, Mischief Kyle showed.

34th Straight For Bret Hanover

Bret Hanover kept a record crowd of 9,537 in suspense for three-quarters of the distance, then surprised no one by pacing to his 34th consecutive victory in the $17,206 Renolds Stakes at Buffalo Raceway Wednesday night.

The high point in New York State harness meets came as the 3-year-old trailed Rivaltime for three-quarters of a mile before moving ahead to win in 2:00 2-5, setting a track record for the age group.

Exacta betting paid only $4.20 on the horses that finished first and second. Adios Vic showed.

In other feature races:
— At Yonkers Raceway, Romeo Hanover and Goodnuf won the two divisions of the $18,750 Star Pointer Pace for 2.

—At Saratoga, Sue Eden trotted the mile in 2:07 1-5 to win the $1,500 race, paying $9.60. Billy Laird placed. High Hat showed.
—At Vernon Downs, Jacana Hanover won the $1,000 pace by a length in 2:04 3-5 and returned $15.40. Second was Hearty Dares, while Shari Lou was third.

Bridge Players Compete Tonight In ABCL Charity

Area bridge players tonight join players in more than 200 cities of the United States and Canada in the 9th Continental-wide Charity Bridge game.

The contestants will play the identical set of hands at the same time they are played at the Summer National Championships of the American Contract Bridge League in Chicago.

The local game is scheduled at Britts Auditorium at 8:15 p. m. and area bridge professional, L. H. Wheatcroft, tournament director, expects a large turnout.

Entry fees will benefit the ACBL Charity campaign which last year gave nearly a quarter of a million dollars to the American Cancer Society and the United Cerebral Palsy Associations.

Players everywhere are dealt the exact hands as the experts tackle in the Charity Pairs game in Chicago. Each individual section of the continentwide game is scored independently, but the averages are compared with those of all players in the contest. Awards, in addition to top score prizes for each section, include prizes for the best scores in each district and prizes for overall national first, second and third places.

MODERN MAIDENS

"Someday I'm going to sit down and learn how to play the piano."

DO YOU REMEMBER

By SOPHIE MILLER

August, 1965 brought a little rain, and the state tax of 2 per cent. I wonder if a State Lottery would have made people happier, only time will tell. Today one travels with various numbers, such as a long telephone number, a Zip Code number, Social Security number, and now a tax number. Suddenly the value of a penny is very important. I think someone wrote a book called "Two Cent Plain". I did not read it, but as I remember the former director of the Kingston Library told me I would enjoy it. I take it, two cent plain, meant a plain two cent soda.

Years ago, when I went to School No. 3 on Chambers Street which school is now boarded up for Urban Renewal projects, and the children now go elsewhere, a penny played a big part in our life. I think we used to get an ice cream cone for a penny or two cents. It was very small, but it was real ice cream. There was also small glasses for penny or two cent soda water, and some syrup in it which we used to get in a store on Meadow Street, or perhaps even Abrahams at the bottom of the hill on Chambers Street near the school. A nickel let us into the Lyric, a movie house where we had live music, as a lady played the piano, but silent pictures. Those were the days that corned beef, pickles, vegetables and perhaps a pickle or pickled beets, and hot drink, tea, or hot chocolate. Now they consider a hot meal, a hot dog, with hot sauce and cold milk. We ran home for lunch, but called it dinner then, and it was a dinner. Super we ate at six, and it was also a hot meal. Most of us ate soup, meat and potatoes twice a day, for food was cheap, and few were without in spite of what is written and said. People ate well in those days, often baking their own bread, for coal heat was in the oven, not to be wasted, used for puddings, apples and potatoes.

No doubt the envelopes are coming in faster and faster, for the big Fulton-Clermont event at the Central Postal Office, where they will receive the final touch of the First Day Issue, Clermont, postmark and the five cent Fulton stamp on Aug. 19. I would suggest that those having envelopes or cachet covers, illustrated envelopes, write their return address on the bottom of the envelope and bring them to the post-office many days before Aug. 19, to make sure it is there in time. You do not have to be a stamp collector to do it, but it might interest you in future stamps and cachet envelopes.

I was first attracted to these cachet envelopes on May 2, when I attended the Kingston Stamptrappers display at the Governor Clinton Hotel and bought my first cover, or envelope with Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt's pictures and stamps and "First Day of Issue" cancellation. Then through the help of Mrs. Ruth Hellard, president of the club and her husband, I was told about these interesting collector's items. I designed a Fulton cover, with a miniature of Fulton looking down at the Clermont, and then decorated them in colors with various ideas concerning Fulton. The green shamrock, the artist palette, eagle, keystone design, ship lantern, world globe, ship compass and some 15 designs in all. That Fulton's people came from Ireland, he was an artist, Fulton was born in Pennsylvania, the keystone state, gave me ideas. I ran off his biography on a blue sheet which fits in each envelope, and now find some have three different sets, of five designs each which I will gladly show those who are interested in getting such envelopes serviced at our Central Post Office.

Kennedy Proposes Commission for Hudson Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., has suggested New York and New Jersey create a Hudson River Basin Commission as part of a long-term plan to develop water resources.

Kennedy, who made the suggestion yesterday in a Senate speech, described the Delaware River Basin Commission as an effective water development agency and urged that a similar group be established in the Hudson basin.

Kennedy also urged: —Help from Army engineers to plan and build emergency water resource facilities.

—Congressional approval of a bill to provide federal aid to rural communities for pipeline and reservoir construction.

—Permit farmers in drought-stricken counties to use federal surplus grain.

—Expansion of available weather forecast information.

Kennedy said to help combat drought now he would ask the Welfare Department to hold a federal water pollution enforcement conference.

In a related development, the State Water Resources Commission opened its hearing Thursday in Poughkeepsie.

Testimony was heard on New York City's application to tap the Hudson River and the possible effects this might have on the river's salt content.

New York City officials have proposed drawing water from the river at Chelsea, below Poughkeepsie, to supplement its depleted water supply.

Ex-Pharmacist Is Held for Sale, Drug Possession

CORTLAND, N.Y. (AP) — A 38-year-old ex-pharmacist has been arrested on charges of illegal possession and sale of several hundred thousand dollars worth of narcotics.

Norman Schulman of Binghamton, was arrested Thursday on a downtown street. Schulman requested a preliminary examination at his arraignment. Acting City Judge Lynn P. Dorset adjourned the case to Aug. 25. Bail was set at $1,000.

Police said they found paragon, amphetamine, dextroamphetamine, and codeine in Schulman's apartment and automobile.

Schulman stole the narcotics from drugstores where he worked and bought them from pharmaceutical firms police said.

Schulman had worked in Cortland, Groton, Ithaca, and the Binghamton area. He is a graduate of Columbia University's College of Pharmacy.

Rain Helps Crops, Reservoir Still In Critical Way

By J. HUNTER HOLLOWAY

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP) — Recent rains across New York State have been a life-saver for crops and grass lands, but dusty, depleted reservoirs and other water sources remain critically low. No real relief is expected before October.

Crop-production still is below normal, although hay and corn yields are improved over last year's.

Ralph Heath, head of the U.S. Geological Survey's water resources division here, said today southeastern counties need 10 to 15 inches of slow rain over a 10-day period to replenish the critically low water table.

The drought is maintaining its tight grip on the area of the state southeast of a line between Binghamton and Glens Falls, he said. Other parched areas include Essex County and the northern section of Washington County, on the west shore of Lake Champlain. Steuben and Chemung counties are "as dry as ever," a state official reported.

A "gully-washer," or severe downpour, would only cause flooding, Heath said, and would bring little, if any, relief from the long drought, now in its fourth year in many eastern areas.

Daniel M. Dahyrmple, assistant commissioner of agriculture, agreed with Heath that crops and pastures have benefited from July rains. They said rainfall in many areas was ample for the demands of shallow-rooted plants.

The U.S. Weather Bureau said July rainfall in Albany was .02 inches above normal, although the total of 14.63 inches for the first seven months of 1965 was 5.74 inches below normal.

Heath said, however, the rains had not penetrated the top soil and had not replenished the water table.

Tight restrictions on the use of water have been imposed in dozens of cities and communities. Local governments also are seeking additional supplies to supplement their normal source of water.

Because of the drought, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has granted permission for farmers in 46 upstate counties to cut hay and graze cattle on lands held in federal conservation programs.

Heath said relief could not be expected before mid-October, when the fall rains begin. And, these, he said, must come before a severe freeze locks the soil and prevents the moisture from reaching the water table.

Another effect of the drought, he said, is increased pollution. Although levels of pollution increase or remain relatively constant, he explained, the pollutants have been concentrated in smaller volumes of water.

To Expand Navy's Part in Viet War

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — An expanding role for the U.S. Navy is planned in the Vietnamese war.

About 32,000 Navy personnel now are directly or indirectly connected with the war effort here, approximately 30,000 of them with the U.S. 7th Fleet in the South China Sea.

Three months ago, U. S. destroyers and cruisers opened fire for the first time on suspected Viet Cong targets in support of the ground war. Since then Navy guns have boomed on nearly 130 missions.

The Navy has gradually increased its number of vessels on patrol along the coast, searching for Communist infiltration of men, arms and equipment by sea.

Seventeen Coast Guard cutters recently arrived to join in the sea surveillance program. Plans are under way to bring in 50 other smaller patrol boats. Twenty-five ships are on patrol in outer waters.

Won't Ease Regulations

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Delaware River Basin Commission was expected to extend emergency regulations on water in a four-state area today despite a slight easing of the drought and a rise in the Delaware River flow.

"The recent rains have helped," a spokesman for the commission said, "but we're a long way from being out of the woods."

The commission declared a drought emergency July 7 and issued a series of directives governing withdrawals and releases from reservoirs in the Delaware watershed covering New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

Library Reports Record Month in Loaning of Books

Almost 10,000 books were loaned during July by the Kingston Library as readers caught up with their summer reading. This was a record month in the library's history.

New books recently acquired include the following titles: "The Goddess Queen — Nefertiti" by Nikols Vdai, is a story of the fabulous rulers of ancient Egypt and an era of unparalleled splendor, cruelty and fascination.

"Milk and Honey, Travails with a Donkey" — by Paul Stanton, is about children and animals, horticultural shows, village policemen, tombs and donkey rides, rectors and holidays, post stables and converted garden sheds.

"A Child's Garden of Misinformation, harvested by Art Linkletter, is filled with hybrids of the wildest, wackiest, most hilariously unexpected kind.

"Day of Trinity, by Loring Lomont, is the full and understandable account of one of the most climatic occasions in the history of man: the successful explosion of the first atomic bomb, when man came closest to Judgement Day.

"The Seat of Power, by James D. Horan is a novel about city politics, filled with all the drama, romance and frustration of municipal government.

"The Making of the President, 1964, by Theodore White, tells the story of that turbulent year of decision which began with the assassination of J.F.K.

"The Rabbi, by Noah Gordon, is the tale of a boy growing up in the huge ghetto of Jewish neighborhoods in New York, and how he was influenced by his grandfather, father and rabbi.

"Let Me Count the Ways, by Peter DeVries, is a comic novel about Stanley Waltz, a Polish-American piano mover, and his girl.

Pravda Critical

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda reported today that lack of packing plants and sluggish operation of existing ones is causing loss of meat in the virgin land country.

Animals are losing 10 per cent of their weight while waiting at the stockyards or during long shipments to other parts of the country, the Communist party paper said.

Labor Council Is Staying Aloof of Primary in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City Central Labor Council, which represents a million members of 500 AFL-CIO unions, will not endorse any candidate in the Democratic mayoral primary election Sept. 14.

The council's decision was generally considered a blow to City Council President Paul R. Scervane, one of four major candidates for the nomination.

Supporters of Scervane had been hoping for an endorsement by the council and its president, Harry Van Arsdale Jr., a close ally of retiring Mayor Robert F. Wagner. Van Arsdale announced Thursday that the council's executive board had voted unanimously not to make any endorsement in "what he called a Democratic 'family fight.'" Van Arsdale had said recently that the council, which traditionally has not participated in primary campaigns, might endorse a mayoral nomination candidate this year.
